Arms Embargo Repeal Threat To U.S. Defense Plans, Bob Says

Thinks Plants Will Be Tooled to Meet
Foreign Needs

AIRS PROBLEMS

Finds National Program
Sidetracked; Cites War
Boom Dangers

Washington—(P)—Senator LaFollette (P-Wis.) told the senate today that repeal of the arms embargo, as proposed in the administration neutrality bill, might cripple the American defense program.

The Wisconsin senator, who usually supports Roosevelt legislation, asserted that complex domestic problems were being "relegated to the limbo of forgotten things" by what he described as a step toward partial participation in the European war.

Instead of taking this step, he argued, the United States should concentrate its efforts on building up in this hemisphere an economy which would provide the stimulus for a sound business recovery.

"When we ourselves need arms, our factories will be tooled to produce foreign types of arms and munitions," he declared. "We may find planes plants tooled to make airplanes a year or two old instead of the most modern type. In short, repeal of the arms embargo may mean a crippling of our own national defense program."

War Boom Danger
He said that there were "widespread apprehensions that the reasons given by many for the repeal of the embargo are not the real reasons."

"Unemployment, farm prices, mortgage foreclosures, idle capital, idle plant capacity are no longer topics of chief concern. There are ominous suggestions that a war boom would help to solve our problems. Even the president's message on the neutrality issue was not free from this taint. In this direction lies disaster. In large measure the problems we face today are due to the distortion of our entire economic life produced by the last war."

"I repudiate the idea that we cannot solve our problems here at home without resort to the stimulus to business brought about by the wholesale slaughter of human beings in Europe."

Proposes Alternative
LaFollette proposed, as a "constructive alternative," that the United States devote some of its resources to raising the standard of living in Latin American countries.

"Our financial assistance for this purpose would make possible an increased demand for American exports, incidentally helping us to secure full employment," he predicted.

"I recognize that the difficulties of our trade with Latin-America have centered around the fact that she produces raw materials and agricultural products. I do not favor our capital going down there to develop those resources."

"I am not recommending a policy of rash, quick loaning to buy favors. But I do think we can adjust the past debts with Latin-America much as we adjusted our international debts when the banks went under."

Fears 'Incidents'

LaFollette argued that there was a great distinction between supplying finished arms to belligerents, as would be possible under the administration bill, and selling them only raw materials as permitted under the present law. He contended that the arms trade was largely instrumental in taking this country into the world war.

He charged that "several discretionary loopholes" in the administration bill would be sufficient to allow incidents which might lead the United States into war.

A Matter Of Elasticity

Rubber manufacturer offers "flexible hours" to his employees. Quite appropriate yet surprising. Maybe he's got hours that will stretch better without snapping back like a rubber band. Vulcanized hours, so to speak. It's indifferent to us, as long as people don't stretch the hour-limit for classified want-ads to The Post-Crescent. Printers don't stretch, except very early in the morning, when they get up before breakfast. Here's a reprint of a very successful want-ad that came in just before the deadline:

KRIVITSKY TELLS HOW RUSSIANS PURGED COMMUNISTS

General Walter G. Krivitsky (left), who identified himself as formerly of the Russian military intelligence, and Chairman Martin Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities, are shown in Washington after Krivitsky told the committee that communist party leaders in Germany, Poland and Hungary were recalled to Moscow and shot even though they were not Russian citizens.

Y Campaign Fund Reaches $4,523 in 2nd Day of Drive

R. L. Peterson, Rev. R. H.
Spangler Pace Top
Division

Enthusiasm again was the keynote when workers met at a dinner meeting last night and reported a campaign fund of $4,523.35 after only two days of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. drive for new memberships.

The daily diggers led by the Rev. G. H. Blum and George F. Werner scored high for the second day with 47 members and 1,074 points. The team of R. L. Peterson and the Rev. R. H. Spangler led the division with 10 members and 300 points.

In second place were the Fighting Fems with 800 points based on 20 memberships; fourth place went to the Brown Bombers with 435 points based on 40 members; in third place were the A-Oners with 756 points based on 30 memberships; and in fifth, the Capitalists with 227 points based on 11 memberships.

Leading teams were Ethel Hull and Alta Pahl, 3 members and 192 points; the Rev. J. R. Wilson, 5 members and 236 points; Ross Williams and H. A. Brown, 10 members and 17 points; and Fred Buss, Philip Ottman and William Jahnke, 8 members and 104 points.

The value of memberships listed was $16 more than at the same time last year while the cash received totaled about $1,000 more than last year. The member total was 306, the same as last year.

The quota for this year's campaign is $15,000 and the drive will continue until Oct. 16. Co-chairmen are the Rev. Mr. Blum and George Werner.

Vilas Gehin and Robert Connelly entertained the group at last night's meeting which was attended by about 65 workers. A report on today's progress will be made at another 6 o'clock dinner tonight at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Death Toll Grows to 7 in School Bus Crash

War, W. Va.—Four more deaths today brought to seven the toll of dead in a school bus crash near here.

Three students died soon after the crowded vehicle plunged over a 75-foot cliff after losing a front wheel yesterday. More than 70 others were injured, 6 of them critically.

Seaman Says Bremen Flew Soviet Flag on Her Voyage To Port in Northern Russia

Amsterdam—(P)—A Netherlands seaman on the German liner Bremen declared the vessel reached Murmansk, north Russian port, after a thrilling voyage during which she flew the Soviet flag and preparations were made to destroy her rather than allow her to fall in British hands.

E. Post, a cook and only Netherlands seaman on the Bremen when she sailed Aug. 30 from New York, told his story in a copyrighted interview with the Amsterdam newspaper Het Volk after his return to his native country.

He said Captain Adolf Ahrens skirted the blockade of the British fleet with barrels of gasoline on deck ready for burning the vessel rather than allow her to be captured by the British.

Pension Leader Announces New Party in State

Liberal Republican Party
Maps $60-at-60 Plan;
Backs Vandenberg

Milwaukee—(P)—Peter J. Zisch, a leader in the Citizens' Pension and Recovery group, announced last night the launching of the liberal Republican party of Wisconsin.

The organization, Zisch said, is committed to support of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) for the Republican nomination for president and a $60-at-60 pension plan.

Incorporation papers were signed by Charles Leonard Zipfel, Mrs. Clara K. Schmidt and James T. Doyle. They were to be filed with Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman at Madison today.

Zisch made the announcement at a meeting of the pension group. The party is being formed, it was reported, to supplant the Vandenberg for President club whose officers resigned last week after they had lost control of a Fond du Lac meeting called for the purpose of naming a slate of Vandenberg delegate candidates.

Liner Iroquois Is Safe in New York

Severe Storm and Rumors
Tortured All Aboard
During Voyage

New York—(P)—A three-day storm and an ever-flowing stream of sinister rumors tortured 788 Americans—577 passengers and 211 crewmen—who reached New York last night on the liner Iroquois—the ship which the German admiralty warned would be sunk, supposedly by an allied belligerent.

Abaze with lights, the vessel dropped anchor to the cheers of some 2,000 who had gathered to greet her. A giant spotlight played on a large American flag at her stern.

Mrs. Mary Siegelman of Baltimore, one of the passengers, declared, "If ever there was a ship of horrors, this was it. The storm was so bad that some of the officers said they expected the top of the boat to blow off. Everyone was ill. Then, they started searching our baggage and wouldn't say what for."

"They made us go into the hold—dark, dirty holds—to identify our trunks. Some of us were so sick we couldn't go. When we told them we couldn't go, they told us they would smash our trunks open."

Several passengers agreed the most frightening of the speculations aboard ship was that a time bomb had been secreted somewhere.

Berlin—(P)—Authoritative German quarters said today they considered the fact that the refugee ship Iroquois reached New York safely was "proof that the German navy's fraternal attitude toward America had yielded a 100 per cent success."

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, commander-in-chief of the German navy, had warned the United States government that the Iroquois would be torpedoed.

Kills Two Women and Then Takes Own Life

Chicago—(P)—Thomas Ali, 52, shot and killed his estranged wife and a beauty shop employee today. Detective William O'Toole said, and then killed himself with a bullet through the head.

The shootings occurred in a beauty shop at 3935 Drexel avenue, on the south side, owned by Ali's wife, Vee, 37. The other victim was Helen Trebilcock, 22.

The three were dead before police could question them.

Police were summoned by Mrs. Edith Witt, an employee of a cleaning establishment next door. Mrs. Ali staggered into the shop, cried "help me" and collapsed.

Lewis Tries to 'Destroy' Labor Groups, Charge

Martin Renews 'Dictator' Accusations Against CIO Chief

MORRISON RESIGNS

Secretary-Treasurer Quits
After Serving
Since 1896

Cincinnati—(P)—William Green was reelected president of the American Federation of Labor today for the sixteenth time. Frank Duffy, Indianapolis, an officer of the carpenter's union, resigned as first vice president and William Hutchesson, carpenter union president, was elected his successor.

Cincinnati, Ohio—(P)—The American Federation of Labor received today the resignation of its veteran secretary-treasurer, Frank Morrison, and heard from Homer Martin a declaration that the real purpose of John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations was "to destroy the American labor movement."

In his first speech to a federation gathering since his faction of the United Auto Workers international switched from CIO to A.F. of L., Martin renewed many of his "dictator" charges against Lewis.

He charged too, that Lewis and his organization made no contributions to the upbuilding of the U.A.W., nor aided it with funds in its strike against General Motors in 1937. But Lewis has spent, he declared, upwards of $1,500,000 since last January "to capture and control" the auto workers union. The U.A.W. split into two camps early this year.

In announcing his retirement, Morrison said, "I do it with a full heart. All circumstances considered, it will be helpful to the trade union movement at this time."

New York, Nov. 8 next, Morrison has been secretary since 1896. Trade union leaders predicted George Meany, president of the New York State Federation of Labor and member of the plumbers' union, would succeed him. Delegates created a $6,000 a year retirement compensation for Morrison.

Martin's talk preceded convention consideration of one of its most troublesome international problems, the teamsters-brewery workers' jurisdictional fight.

The executive council recommended suspension of the Brewery Workers' union last week because it instituted a federal court suit in the District of Columbia to enjoin AFL officers from transferring jurisdiction of beer drivers to the teamsters' union.

The B.W.U. won its injunction action last Friday.

Federation chiefs pointed out that the court injunction affected one of the federation's most vital powers in dealing with the organizing jurisdictions of its affiliated unions.

Three Racine Men Sent To Prison in Illinois

Waukegan, Ill.—(P)—Three Racine, Wis., men accused of looting two department stores in North Chicago and two hardware stores in Waukegan, were under state prison sentences of one year to life today.

The men, who pleaded guilty to burglary charges and were sentenced yesterday to serve their terms in the Joliet penitentiary, identified themselves as Joseph Marcis, 26, of 1103 Milwaukee avenue; his brother, Albert Marcis, 21, of 815 Thirteenth street, and Louis Geretz, 21, of 815 Thirteenth street, all of Racine.

Black Cats Must Be Belled Friday, 13th

French Lick, Ind.—(P)—The French Lick town board thinks there's enough bad luck in the world right now without black cats adding their share on Friday, the 13th.

The board decreed today that for 24 hours beginning at midnight tonight all black cats here shall wear bells so residents may avoid having their backs crossed by these omens of ill luck.

Town Marshal Andy Cope was given the task of rounding up and bell the cats.

Roosevelt Asks War Relief Agencies to Co-Ordinate All Activities With Red Cross

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt urged today that relief agencies collecting funds in this country to aid European war victims co-ordinate their activities with the Red Cross.

In a statement issued and drafted with the approval of Secretary Hull and Norman Davis, Red Cross chairman, the president said he hoped this would be done to "prevent duplication and confusion, avoid waste and promote the utmost efficiency."

Mr. Roosevelt said that in disaster "we naturally turn to the American Red Cross but as the war went on there undoubtedly would be need for relief work in addition to that which comes within the scope of that organization."

U.S. Hopes Russia And Finland Will Safeguard Peace

'German Government Alone' Stands in Way of Peace, Chamberlain Tells Commons

London—(P)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told Adolf Hitler today he could have peace if he wanted it but it "must be a real and settled peace" and not that outlined by the German fuhrer in the reichstag last Friday.

Replying to Hitler's peace overtures, Chamberlain, in his weekly war report to the house of commons, said the proposals of Hitler's speech were "vague and uncertain and contain no suggestion for righting the wrongs done to Czechoslovakia and Poland."

"The German government and the German government alone," Chamberlain declared, stands in the way of the "peace we are determined to secure."

When Chamberlain finished his comparatively brief declaration, Clement R. Attlee, leader of the labor opposition, spoke in support.

Britain, Chamberlain declared, could not accept such a basis for peace as Hitler proposed "without forfeiting her honor."

'Better System' Aim

The prime minister added: "We are not aiming only at victory, but rather looking beyond it to the laying of a foundation of a better international system which will mean that war is not to be the lot of every succeeding generation."

"It is for Germany to make her choice," he asserted, whether to continue the war or show she wants peace by "definite acts and by the provision of effective guarantees" that her undertakings will be carried out.

Chamberlain refrained from giving a specific statement on Britain's war aims despite a widespread demand in some political quarters for such a statement.

This view was brought to the floor of the commons by Sir Archibald Sinclair, liberal leader, who expressed the hope the government would soon go further in defining war aims.

Sinclair said his own conditions for peace included the withdrawal of German troops from Czechoslovakia and Poland and letting Austria decide its destiny by plebiscite.

Chamberlain recounted the various peace efforts including those Turn to page 2 col. 1

Labor Peace Left Up to Committee

CIO Recommends Continuation of Existing Negotiating Committee

San Francisco—(P)—The international CIO convention dismissed today in one paragraph resolution the request of President Roosevelt that the CIO and A. F. of L. conclude a labor peace.

The resolution stated simply the CIO had an existing negotiating committee, and recommended that this committee "be continued and authorized to exercise its discretion in any future negotiations" with the federation toward an accord.

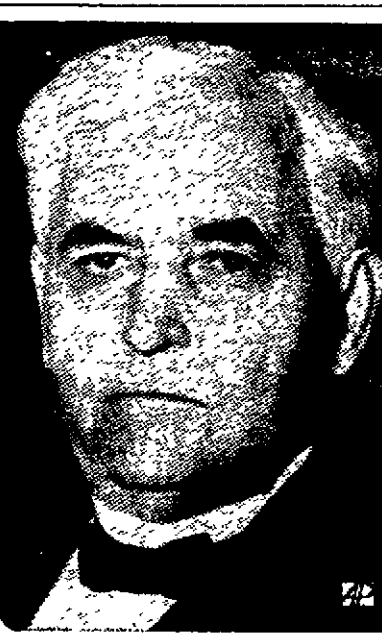

The reply was drafted by the resolutions committee headed by Van A. Bittner, chairman of the Packing House Workers' Organizing Committee, as a substitute for resolutions relating to labor unity proposed by 11 CIO unions and state and city councils.

President Roosevelt in a letter to John L. Lewis, president of the CIO, said he had already asked the federation convention at Cincinnati, Ohio, to "continue wholeheartedly and generously the search for an accord" and that he "now asked your body to do the same."

Lewis indicated answer to the president would be left in the convention's hands.

With 16 resolutions adopted unanimously, there remained 32 to be acted on by the delegates.

The convention went on record in favor of an old age pension plan which would have the cooperation of all "progressive and old age groups."

WILL QUIT POST
Cincinnati—(P)—Frank Morrison announced to the American Federation of Labor convention today that he would not seek re-election as A. F. of L. secretary-treasurer, a post he has held since 1896.

Dealers Urged to Use Finance Setup, Witness Asserts

Told Business Would be Appreciated 'Very Much,' Texan Says

South Bend, Ind.—(P)—Automobile dealers who failed to use the facilities of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation were called in by zone managers and told their business would be appreciated "very much," a government witness testified today in the anti-trust trial of General Motors Corporation, three affiliated finance companies and 17 officials.

The witness was William B. McLain of Houston, Texas, who testified he was employed from 1925 to 1935 by G.M.A.C. in Dallas and Houston, Texas.

Holmes Baldrige, head counsel for the government, questioned McLain for an hour as to whether dealers were ever forced or coerced to use G.M.A.C. facilities in financing sales.

"We would suggest to dealers that they were members of General Motors family and it would be to their advantage to use G.M.A.C.," McLain declared.

The witness said dealers were told they would get the "whole package," including insurance, through G.M.A.C.

Baldrige asked McLain what action was taken in the case of a dealer who gave G.M.A.C. "only a little business."

"The zone manager would call the dealer in," he told him his business would be appreciated very much," McLain replied.

Fernando L. Mendez, a South Bend automobile dealer who had handled Buicks and Pontiacs, followed McLain. He was questioned as to whether pressure had been brought to bear to force him to finance sales through G.M.A.C.

Two government witnesses testified yesterday General Motors did not force its dealers to finance sales through G.M.A.C.

War Prosperity Is a 'Delusion,' President Of N. A. M. Declares

Milwaukee—(P)—"The war abroad must not be regarded as a heaven-sent opportunity to provide profits for those of us who have labored in a fruitless vineyard for 10 long years," Howard Conoley of New York, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, warned last night.

In an address delivered at a meeting of industrialists and businessmen, one of a series of gatherings sponsored by the N.A.M., Conoley declared that "war prosperity is a delusion and a delusion, followed by recurring hard times which wreck our free institutions."

He said that the N.A.M. had called upon its members to guard against any price or profit policies not justified by actual cost and anticipated cost of replacement, and added:

"While wanting peace, industry recognizes that one of the most effective means of enabling this country to stay at peace is for the world to know that we can quickly and efficiently defend ourselves. To the task of national preparedness American industry offers its facilities as public need requires."

Farmland Critically Shot; Probe Started

Dodgeville, Wis.—(P)—Herman Everson, 49-year-old farmland and escaped inmate of the Vernon county asylum, lay in critical condition at a hospital here today as District Attorney George J. Larkin unraveled a story of a series of incidents which culminated in the shooting of Everson Tuesday.

The shooting, Larkin said, was done by Mrs. Albert Steiner, 37, during a scuffle between her husband, 50, and Everson along a roadside after she told her spouse that the farmland had forced his attentions upon her.

While authorities had been seeking Everson for two years since his escape from the asylum, Larkin added he had been working first at Dodgeville and then at the Steiner farm near Barneveld.

The district attorney said Mrs. Steiner came to Dodgeville with her husband immediately after the shooting to surrender.

Envoy to Deliver American Appeal To Moscow

PARLEY TODAY

Finns Apparently Unhurried in Negotiations With Soviet

Washington—(P)—The American government, it was learned authoritatively today, is expressing to soviet Russia its "earnest hope" that nothing may occur calculated "to effect injuriously" peaceful relations between Russia and Finland.

It was also learned that the American move was an entirely independent action of the United States government.

Instructions covering the representations were sent to American Ambassador Laurence Steinhardt at Moscow.

Norway, Sweden and Denmark were understood here to be ready to make a move for peace if it was deemed advisable. Ministers from those countries, however, said they had not received word about any action by their governments.

Silent On Talk
Hjalmar Procopce, Finnish minister to the United States, talked with a White House secretary yesterday, but did not disclose the nature of their conversation.

Ordinarily the Finnish envoy has two major contacts with American officials each year—delivery of a note saying that Finland will make the semi-annual payment on her war debt to the United States. She is the only country which has not missed an installment.

Participation in any diplomatic attempt to prevent a Baltic conflict might take various forms. President Roosevelt might issue a peace appeal to the Russian and Finnish heads of state, as he did to Adolf Hitler and the Polish president late in August.

Or the state department might reaffirm in a notice to Russia the United States' refusal to recognize acquisition of territory by force. Secretary of State last made such a statement after the conquest of Poland.

Moscow—(P)—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt conferred for an hour today with Vyacheslav A. Molotov, premier and foreign commissar of soviet Russia.

Dr. Juho Paasikivi, one time premier, met Soviet Premier Vyacheslav Molotov at 5 p. m. (8 a. m. C. S. T.) for the first of the talks in which Finland is expected to learn what concessions the expanding Russian state desires of her.

Envoys of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania who preceded Paasikivi to the Kremlin yielded there to terms which made those small Baltic republics virtual Russian protectorates, but Finland was expected to be a much tougher customer.

Finland, once a grand duchy of imperial Russia, had complied with a soviet invitation to parley but did so without hurry—and it appeared her answer likewise would be unhurried.

Headed by Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, one-time premier of Finland and now minister to Sweden, the Finnish delegation arrived yesterday by train and it was expected Paasikivi would return to Helsinki after learning exactly what the Russians want and before the Finnish cabinet before giving any answer.

The start of the talks had been expected yesterday.

It was unknown what proposals would be laid before the Finns when they retraced the recent steps Turn to page 2 col. 5

Kaukauna Eleven Drills for Fourth Conference Game

Champions Favored to Beat Clintonville Saturday Afternoon

Kaukauna — Kaukauna High school griders will have their fourth straight conference victory in mind at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon as they take the field here against the Clintonville Trunkers. After a day off Monday Coach Paul Little has been holding practice sessions devoted equally to defensive and offensive work, with the last of such drills slated for today. Friday a light signal drill will end the workouts.

It's hard to convince anyone that Clintonville will afford serious opposition. Kaukauna fans remember the last time a Trucker eleven came here, in 1937, to leave on the short end of a 52 to 0 score. The Clintonville team threw a scare into the Kaws last year on the Trunkers' gridiron, scoring on two trick plays to lead the Kaws for a time. But eventually Kaukauna eked out a 20 to 13 win. This year's team is rated as one of the best ever to play here, as evidenced by their scoring three touchdowns in three games and two in the last one.

Team In Good Shape
The Kaws all came through the Shwartz game in good physical condition. Saturday's opening lineup is expected to find Captain Leo Wolfe back at his center post, with Steve Andrejeski and Ray Hurst at guards; John Wandell and John Velte at tackles; Bill Aiger and Leo Rohan at ends; and Karl Giordana, Ralph Doering, Bob Danner and George Steffen in the backfield. Spectators may count on a varied Kaws offense Saturday. In other years it was mainly a running game that was offered; but three times this season Kaukauna receivers have grabbed passes for touchdowns, and long marches have been a mixture of runs and passes.

CYO Players to Practice Tonight

'Adam's Apple' Will be Staged in Series of Performances

Kaukauna — A dress rehearsal will be held tonight for Holy Cross senior CYO's 8-act comedy, "Adam's Apple," to be given here Sunday evening, Oct. 22. The production staff for the play has been selected, with Robert Eiting, Ray Heindel, Milton Vandehy and John Gruber stagehands, and Beverly Brown, Jeanette Hennies and Vione Sieber property managers. Lois Wieseler will be in charge of the ticket sale. Marie Reuter and Anna Ling are the prompters. Herbert Nelsen will be in charge of the lighting, with the Green Room Artists of Kaukauna High school supervising the makeup work. Leo Scherer will arrange the program.

Users will be Melvin Courtney and Norbert Killian. One change has been made in the cast, according to James W. Lang, director, with Ray Heindel taking the part of Casper's assistant. Herbert Weber has been added to the players, taking the part of a newsboy in the opening scene.

Dates for the play's presentation are Oct. 13, Riverview Sanatorium; Oct. 15, Most Precious Blood parish, New London; Oct. 20, St. Elizabeth's hospital, Appleton, and Oct. 22, Kaukauna.

Blind Man and Dog to Perform for Students

Kaukauna — Ralph Jackson and Cristy, his "seeing eye" dog, will come to Kaukauna High school Monday morning in the second lycium program of the year. Blind since he was 25 years old, Jackson will demonstrate the Braille system of writing and exhibit some of the work he has done.

Future Farmers Will Sponsor School Dance

Kaukauna — Future Farmers of America, high school organization of students in agricultural classes, will sponsor an all-school dance Saturday evening at the gymnasium. Dancing will be held from 9 to 11 o'clock, with the party orchestra providing the music. Refreshments will be sold.

Black Top Streets are Given Asphalt Coating

Kaukauna — Work was begun this week on applying a coat of asphalt to blacktop roads in the city, with south side streets getting first attention. Crushed stone, taken from the excavation at the power project, is applied over the asphalt so that the streets may be used immediately.

Little Theater Begins Preparing for Season

Kaukauna — Little Theater members met last night and mapped preliminary plans for another season at the municipal building. A second meeting has been called for Wednesday evening, Nov. 8.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

High School Coaches Talk to Rotary Club

Kaukauna — Paul E. Little, high school athletic director and football coach, and Paul Krumm, basketball mentor, appeared before Kaukauna Rotary club yesterday noon at Hotel Kaukauna. Little described the personnel of this year's gridiron squad, and the athletic setup at the high school, while Krumm, here for his first year, spoke of basketball projects.

Carl Hansen, Rotary president, announced the appointment of Clarence Kriesa as head of the sports committee and James T. Judd as chairman of the rural-urban group.

Girls' Glee Club Will Hold Halloween Party

Kaukauna — The girls' glee club of Kaukauna High school will hold a Halloween dance Oct. 27, with chairman Beata Aufreiter, Mary Alice Flanagan and Lynn Angevine. On the various committees are Pat Charlesworth, Alice Thompson, Dorothy Zink, Pat Van Lieshout, Bette McCarty, Lois Patterson, T. Vande Wetering, R. Korman, Jean Mitchler, Melva Van Gompel, Jo-An McCarty, Carol Mayer, Rosemary Liethen, Mary Jane Niesen, Rita Belonges, Mary Benotch, Jane Rioux and Marion Brouchek.

St. Mary Parish Bazaar and Festival Will Open Sunday

Kaukauna — The annual bazaar and harvest festival of St. Mary's church will be held Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in the church hall, throughout afternoons and evenings. A bazaar for the school children will be held Wednesday. From 5 to 8 o'clock Sunday evening a cafeteria supper will be served; from 5 to 8 o'clock Monday evening chicken booyah and during the same hours on Tuesday chili lunches. The Rev. Michael Drexler, assistant pastor of St. Mary's parish, heads the committees.

With the ticket sale a complete sellout, Kaukauna Knights of Columbus will celebrate Landing day with a dinner dance and program tonight at their Wisconsin avenue hall. The Very Rev. Dr. Anselm M. Keefe, O. Praem, dean of St. Norbert's college at West DePere, will be the main speaker. His topic will concern Christopher Columbus, patron of the Knights. Dinner will be served at 6:30, with John Van De Loo toastmaster of the program which follows. Harold Hoolihan, director of the Knights' choir, will lead community singing, and May or Lewis P. Nelson will extend his greetings. Joseph T. Sadlier, district deputy, will deliver a message from the Wisconsin council, and James W. Lang will welcome the ladies. Cards and dancing will round out the evening.

Royal Neighbors of America held a guest card party at Martens hall last night following a short business meeting. Prizes in bridge were won by Willard Campbell and Mrs. Sturm, with sheephead awards going to Mrs. Elmer Johnson and Walter Kuehl. A Halloween party planned by the group for Oct. 25.

Michael Gaffney, Fond du Lac, state president of Fraternal Order of Eagles, will speak here Nov. 1 as the local aerie initiates a class of candidates, Al Hartzheim, secretary, announced this morning. The class will be known as the "Michael Gaffney class" in honor of the visitor. The Green Bay degree team will put on the degree work. At a meeting this week plans for a membership campaign were outlined, with Cy Berg general chairman. Under him, each in charge of a district of the city, are Captains John Burke, Jr., Gerald Smith, Harold Van Dyke, Norbert Wendland, Chris Kindler, Walter Hartzheim, Lloyd Romanesko, Jake Rink, Argo Graf, Clarence Kastel, Louis Dahm and Ed Ryan. Each member of the aerie is represented on the map of Kaukauna with a red pin—when he secures another member it is changed to a blue pin. The theme of the drive is "get out of the red."

Wednesday, members will meet an hour earlier, at 7 o'clock, at Odd Fellows hall, to leave in a body for Green Bay. There, in the north room of the Columbus club, John Abel, Philadelphia, grand worthy president, is to speak. A short business meeting will be held before leaving Kaukauna.

Movie Land Its People and Products

Franchot Tone, who after a successful year on Broadway in "Gentle People" with Sylvia Sydney, returned to Hollywood to appear with Ann Southern in "Fast and Furious."

By Jimmie Fidler
Hollywood — Consider the case of Lloyd Nolan. About a year ago, when George Raft and Paramount staged a final tiff, the studio moguls decided that Lloyd, who had been going great guns in character roles, should be converted — presto — into a romantic leading man and installed in Raft's vacated spot. After planning a couple of romances — and playing them exceptionally well — Nolan rebelled, asked to be released from his contract, and was, of course, promptly dubbed "crazy" by a good many Hollywoodites.

It seems to me that not Nolan, but the Hollywood system, is crazy. Why should a studio try to convert one of the most valuable character men in the business into a leading man of very questionable value? And why should an actor, as well established as Nolan was in one line of work, consent to be shifted, arbitrarily, into an entirely different type of role and thereby jeopardize his whole future. As a character "heavy" Nolan is a cinch to be in demand for years to come; as a romantic lead he would be an untried commodity.

taking the easy way out whenever there has been a casting problem to solve. Instead of searching until exactly the right actor or actress is found for the spot, the whole tendency has been to take someone—anyone—with an established name and plug up the hole. It's bad casting practice and it undoubtedly is bad box-office. Actors would be wise to follow Nolan's example and simply refuse to play roles for which they consider themselves unsuited.

PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS: No star gets as big a kick out of analyzing her own faults as does Bette Davis. When Adolphe Menjou settles down to serious thinking, you'll find him with his thumb nail firmly lodged between his teeth. Just before a tough emotional scene, Joan Crawford always stands with her face to the wall and concentrates. There's something amusing—but very understandable—in Georgiana Young's constant effort to look like big-sister Loretta. Discovery of the week: that Anna Neagle's eyes, which appear to be brown in photographs, are really a sparkling blue.

MUTTERINGS: Why doesn't one of our producers do the obvious and bring Wendy Hiller over from England? Growl! The stars who delay production for every little ache, should take a look at Lionel Barrymore—who's in real pain ALL the time. Judging from the trashy assignments given other capable actresses, maybe Bette Davis, instead of complaining about too many roles, should spend her energy thanking Allah for having so many GOOD ones. Imaginable hilarious evening: Tying Zasu Pitts hands behind her and saying, "Now—be yourself!" Odes to the insidious power of publicity: Hedy Lamarr, with only one picture to her credit, demanding a pay increase of 1000 per cent!

WHEN CIVIL WAR IS THE ONLY OUTLET

On Tuesday last an angry mob of over 10,000 people gathered before the New Orleans courthouse demanding the recall of the machine prosecutor and declaring their pent-up resentment at the Kluxer Black machine judge who put members of the grand jury in prison for daring to voice in mild but straight language their apprehension concerning the protection of the grafters who had preyed upon the public. The people in this throng, once the "faithful followers" of Senator Long, screamed imprecations upon his soiled name, wise at last to the chains he forged for their wrists and ankles while he called their attention to the beauties of the sunset.

At Baton Rouge, the capital of Louisiana, another grand jury ejected the machine prosecutor and the machine attorney general from their session and publicly declared they "had been hampered and kept from uncovering graft and corruption in high places."

We have little compassion for the people of Louisiana. They were such suckers. They might just as well have had no foreheads at all. With their eyes open they supported a mountebank, a cross between a clown and an organ grinder, who promised to make them all millionaires while he and his regime nicked them for their few remaining dimes.

Huey Long, with the aid of the people, controlled the legislature and put his sentinels into all prosecutor's jobs. But there was still one danger point—the courts. "There ain't nobody smarter than me," said Dictator Long as he put Kluxer Blacks on the bench.

And when you come to think of it, what can the people do except revolt when one man or machine controls everything? It is like telling an accused person that he can prosecute himself and also sit on the bench.

Somewhere one circuit judge in Louisiana escaped the Long knife. And today the people of that state are crying for him to sit in judgment. They don't expect any favors from him. They only expect the honest exercise of his conscience which is just exactly what the machine never wants. The people there never thought of a parched throat until the well ran dry.

But a desperate machine can go further. In charge of counting the ballots it can sneer at the majority of the people. Honest elections, however, are measurably safe if there is an honest judiciary to which appeal can be made with evidence of flagrant wrongdoing at the polls.

If the pock-marked machine will not retreat but insists upon choking democracy into insensibility what remedy have the people of Louisiana except the mob and revolt?

"It can't happen here" is baloney. It has happened here.

HITLER IN CONSTRUCTIVE MOOD

Germany is undertaking to move from the Baltic states her nationals and replace them in the Reich.

There are about 60,000 Germans in Latvia and about 25,000 in Estonia and Lithuania. These people have resided in their present communities some 700 years.

There are also two million Germans who colonized along the Volga about 200 years ago. Berlin announced that negotiations are pending with Moscow to cover the return of these families to the Reich.

Whatever motives may actuate Berlin in this movement, and whether it originated with the Hitler government or in the Baltic states or Russia the plan is assuredly a sound one. No matter now that Catherine the Great may have invited the immigration from Germany expecting a Russian advantage. The continued existence of these formidable minorities has certainly not been conducive to peace or tranquility.

No nation wants within its borders a people who do not become assimilated to its national life and owe allegiance to it first of all. Aside from learning the language of their new country which they spoke but infrequently the members of these minorities were just as alien to their actual homeland as the day they arrived in the long ago. Speaking German as their preferred language, never surrendering customs or traditions of the Reich, they lived their lives, and perhaps honest, industrious ones, but they could not have given to the land that actually supported them the degree of fidelity demanded in a nationalistic world. In many instances, however, the existence of such a minority becomes a thorn in the side of their neighbors, and as hostility ferments and retaliation ensues, there is created a cause for intervention, even though the latter may have been purposely stimulated by forced draft.

THE C.Y.L. MODERNIZES

OLIVER TWIST

The testimony before the Dies Committee against the Communist Youth League, it will be well to remember, does not come from its enemies but its friends, even its members.

Taking a day's testimony, almost any day's is something like reaching back into the story of Oliver Twist or those parts of it which dealt with the criminal classes in England some generations ago.

It may be well to introduce ourselves again to old Fagin, every feature distorted with a hideous grin, and Charley Bates with his boon companion, the Artful Dodger, and Oliver Twist too fresh from the Orphanage, with wondering eyes looking out upon a wonderful world ready to believe anything and as ready to give his admiration to anyone who seems clever however much of a rogue he may be.

For Fagin's school of crime was built upon the same foundation as the C.Y.L., a matter of roguery and perjury, a quickly grabbed purse and a run up an alley, an immediate change of cap or coat and a return to the scene of the offense with an altered countenance and a sympathetic volunteering of assistance to the very victim in distress.

Dickens described Fagin's school of crime like this:

"When the breakfast was cleared away, Fagin, acting as a merry old gentleman and the two boys played a curious and uncommon game. The merry old gentleman, placing a snuff box in one pocket of his trousers, a note case in the other, and a watch in his waistcoat pocket, and sticking a mock diamond pin in his shirt, buttoned his coat tight round him and trotted up and down the room with a stick. . . Sometimes he stopped at the fireplace, and sometimes at the door, making believe that he was staring with all his might into shop windows. . . All this time, the two boys followed him closely about; getting out of his sight, so nimbly, every time he turned around, that it was impossible to follow their motions. At last the Dodger trotted upon his toes, while Charley Bates stumbled up against him behind; and in that moment they took from him, with the most extraordinary rapidity, snuff box, note case, watch, shirt pin, and even his spectacle case. If the old gentleman felt a hand in any one of his pockets he cried out where it was; and then the game began all over again."

And, as Fagin said to Oliver after the two sharpers had departed: "There, my dear, that's a pleasant life, isn't it?"

But according to the testimony of the Wisconsin Red, rulers of the C.Y.L. are as heartless with their own members as one wolf with another. At least he was deprived, all told, of 80 per cent of the amount he received for loss of a leg in an accident.

Even a Gurdler reactionary wouldn't be that brutal.

TURKEY GROWERS AND GOBBLEERS

Elkader, down in Iowa, of which we never heard before, has set an example in the matter of Thanksgiving observation that may sweep the nation.

They are going to have Thanksgiving there on November 2 because the town officials chose that date; on November 9 because the township trustees fixed upon that date; on November 16 because the county board thought that a happy time; on November 23 as proclaimed by the President; and on November 30 because designated by Iowa's governor, Wilson.

Even never having heard of Elkader it is safe to bet that it is a center of turkey raising or holds within its narrow boundaries some yankee wits who know that the best way to get the American people back on the track again is to burlesque their willingness to wander.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE BUILDER

He builds a house to please his family And sets a little garden in the back With no thought of himself He plants a tree, Apart from cedar, birch and tamarack.

He does not reckon all the years this house Will stand beneath the trees' enduring boughs He builds a fireplace, with no thought of flame That will ascend when he is just a name.

But every builder, whether he builds walls Or dreams, sets foot in Time's immortal halls, Fashioning his own bit of Heaven, he Comes a step nearer to Infinity.

POET STAR BULLFIGHTER

Montevideo, Uruguay, is expecting the speedy return of Don Manuel De Castró, its poet bullfighter, from the troubled European scene. Commissioned by the Government, the popular bard and toreador, went to Europe to study the plastic arts and literature and make an official report in his own distinctive fashion. When in Montevideo he goes every Sunday afternoon to the Plaza de Toros to take part in the bullfights. This pleasant man in his middle forties is known as the premier amateur bullfighter of Uruguay. He cannot count his fights, but admits that he has been tossed precisely eight times. He began, at the age of seven, to learn the art under an old toreador.

The World War cost the United States over 50,000 men killed in action, 236,000 wounded, 57,000 dead of disease and 6,500 dead of other causes.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—The men in the Conductors' Room at Grand Central are authorities on commuters—those men and women who spend an hour or more each day riding to and from New York on trains. Each morning in a steady stream these trains dump suburbanites into the huge funnel which is Grand Central Station from which they swiftly drain through a score of buildings where their chores await.

It is during these train rides that many commuters do their newspaper reading, or catch up on their literature as represented in the pocket-sized classics which every newsstand purveys. And it is on the commuter trains, too, that the bridge players perfect their games.

At White Plains I stood on the platform as a commuters' train disembarked its cargo of executives, stenographers, clerks and corporation chiefs. As quickly as they stepped from the train the travellers walked gingerly to the rows of waiting automobiles, found their own, and sped home, some behind uniformed chauffeurs, some chauffeured by dutiful wives who regularly meet the 5:49, and some sliding behind the wheels themselves.

There were four well-dressed men, however, who did not hurry away. They descended the train steps, each man clutching playing cards in his hands. They went directly to an empty baggage truck. There one of the men laid out a partly used dummy hand. His partner placed four neatly stacked tricks in front of him. All four men clustered around the truck—and finished the game of bridge begun on the train.

In the Conductors' Room at Grand Central they tell many stories of commuting bridge players. White haired, white mustached and wearing across their vests the thickest watch chains I ever saw, the veteran trainmen have seen romance and squabbles hatch over the card tables as the trains rolled to and fro between city and suburb.

One advertising executive, a conductor said, telephones his bridge partner two stations up the line every morning, to make sure that both will be on the same train. Another conductor marked that playing cards while commuting is a social leveller, with pompous brokers and senior partners sitting in with Wall Street messengers and clerks, the only requirement being that a man play a good game.

Most of the players are men, but one conductor spoke of a romance that blossomed over a commuters' card table. For several weeks, he said, two young ladies and two young men played bridge each morning as the train rolled down from Connecticut. After a few months the ladies no longer made the trip, just the men, who across the swaying table had fallen in love and married the girls.

One conductor voted the card player as the most satisfactory commuter from a trainman's standpoint. "He is occupied completely with his game from the moment we pull out," he explained, "and consequently never bothers us. The commuter who is most annoying is the one who neither plays nor reads. Having nothing to do, he is prone to start long conversations with us—most annoying, because, after all, we have a train to operate."

Each year new bidders for the Swank set patronage appear. This fall it is Cro's of London—"Privileged Host to Royalty," to quote the richly embossed announcement card—which has opened a spiffy spot on Central Park South—a thoroughfare which we lesser lugs call 59th Street. The New York Cro's was launched last month as a Supper Club, its staff, both up front and in the kitchen, being recruited from El Morocco and the costly cased Colony Club.

Morris Green, Cro's impresario, is short, benign and balding, and looks like Peter Ierle. He said the New York Cro's would cater to a "parallel set" to that of London's Cro's—a set which Mr. Green remarks included the Dukes of Windsor and Kent, the Anthony Edens, the royal families of Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands, numerous Maharajahs, "Rich South American cosmopolites," and such Americans as "the Kennedys, the Binghams, the Baches and the Fairbanks." Which, I'm afraid, lets me out. But I don't care, making as I do, a lot of money, and I can put my elbows on the table without the same maitre d'hotel to faint from embarrassment.

As a matter of fact, the table manners of such of the swank set as these blinking eyes have observed are none too dainty. There are victual vulgarities on Park Avenue as well as Grand Street. I'll bet more food is spilled on swank spot table linen than at the Automat. Maybe it's because Automat diners can't afford to spill it.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO Thursday, Oct. 10, 1929

Ross Cannon, son of the Rev. O. D. Cannon, 814 E. John street, a senior at Lawrence college, was named president of Blue Key fraternity, campus service organization, at a meeting of the group at Theta Theta Phi fraternity house Wednesday evening, Carlton Voecks, Appleton, was elected secretary.

Excavating for the new quarters of Lieuten Grain company on the triangle north of the Soo Line railroad tracks at the intersection of N. Badger avenue and W. College avenue began Thursday morning. It was expected the elevators and other buildings on the company's old site at the intersection of Richmond street would be removed.

The Firestone Rubber company was to erect a new super-service station at the corner of Richmond street and College avenue as soon as the property was vacated.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Oct. 15, 1914

A Paris dispatch said the Germans were defeated at Arras, losing 12,000 men. A report from London said the German encirclement movement toward the channel had been checked, the Belgians and British effecting a junction. A Berlin item reported part of the German troops in Belgium had been moved toward Ostend and part toward the French border. The Kaiser's headquarters had been moved farther into France while heavy fighting was going on east of Leisner and Argonne. The Germans now were lost ground, it continued.

A rose bush that had already blossomed three times and had a fourth set of buds was the property of O. L. Kopp, 729 Winnebago street. A serious landslide in Culbraz cut had completely interrupted traffic through the Panama canal.

SPECULATION HALTED

In an effort to end speculation in rice the Japanese Government is backing the Japanese Rice Company, a newly formed monopoly. The first governmental attempt to prevent serious food emergencies was the fixing of upper and lower price limits. The next step, taken with the founding of the new company, is the stabilization of price by eliminating speculation as far as possible. The plan is aimed mainly at the futures markets. Up to the present Japan has had futures markets in 17 leading cities. With the opening of the new rice company's operations only two such markets are permitted, one in Tokyo and one in Osaka. Both will be operated by the Japan Rice Company.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Funeral orations are not in our line but along with a number of other newspaper men we are especially sorry at the death of Senator Logan of Kentucky.

He was one of that fairly limited number of senators who are both able and willing to sit with a reporter through an hour of chat and discussion of tough issues with many angles. He was not a "natural authority" on a single issue that we can recall, yet he had a knack of assembling a mass of sound information which he was willing to let reporters have if they asked for it.

He had spent most of his life as a judge before coming to the senate and his knowledge of the law was much respected not only by the press but by fellow senators. He was not a "hard working" legislator who spent dismal hours in his office digging out tax data. Nevertheless, he probably read from day to day far more than the average senator, and on subjects of special interest to him he read and studied as much as any.

In A Fight The supreme court fight interested him deeply, and throughout that period he was a source of abundant help to Senator Joe Robinson, majority leader, whose death came as a dramatic climax to that historic conflict two years ago. Senator Logan was one of the lead-off men for the administration group trying to win authority for appointment of young and fresh men to the supreme court.

He endured probably the toughest grilling of any who spoke. We heard him talk on his briefs before he went on the floor for that speech and he said then that he knew what he was coming up against. He hoped only that he would be permitted to talk long enough without interruption to give some semblance of coherence to his speech. He had prepared it carefully.

Nothing like that happened. When he arose he drew a barrage of questions which continued without a break until he finished, three hours later. A glance at the Congressional Record shows that rarely was he permitted to finish more than three or four sentences at a time until some senator arose to question or argue. Patiently he answered reams of questions that drew him down the aisles, and as patiently he returned to his own theme after each skirmish.

Senators agree that it was one of the hardest questionings a senator has endured. Had Senator Robinson endured such a test his fiery temper might have arisen to such a pitch as to cause his death long before it came.

A strange little story now is available in connection with Logan's death that could not be told before. A day or so after Robinson's death we happened to be talking with Senator Copeland of New York, the senate's only physician-member in a long time. He recalled then what reporters had noted at the time that he had two times gone over to Robinson's one to caution him against such tempestuous speech as was his habit. He knew Robinson's condition.

"Who will be the next to go?" we asked him.

"It so happened that Logan, in a speech some time before, had quoted that little bogey-man verse beginning:

"Lair night I saw upon the
"A little man who wasn't there,"

By way of answer, Copeland repeated that verse as a means of referring to Logan. He added:

"When a man in his later years begins to thin out about the back of the neck, look out."

Logan had begun to "thin out" about the neck. Yet he was not the next to go. Robinson's one to caution him against such tempestuous speech as was his habit. He knew Robinson's condition.

"Who will be the next to go?" we asked him.

STALEMATE ON THE LABOR FRONT

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY PHILIP E. NELSON

Progressive Senate Floorleader
Madison—After a most ten months in continuous session, the 1939 legislature has adjourned sine die, establishing an all-time record in expenditures as well as length of session.

The legislature adjourned without adopting a taxing program to meet the various expenditures, probably one of the most vital subjects to be considered by any legislature.

We have had several tax proposals, but if any of you have grown dizzy watching the merry-go-round, whirling around, you are no worse off than we in the legislature itself.

Since the Republicans introduced their very first tax bill, they have dragged out proposals to place a tax on all sales of cigarettes, on soda water, on movie admissions, on autos, on music machines, on athletic contest admissions, on oil, on cigars and on all retail stores; and they have proposed increased taxes on liquor, on beer, on gasoline and low incomes.

These new taxes were proposed, each different from the other, but throughout all this crazy-quilt there were two themes which predominated. In the first place, this Republican administration which was elected on the promise of economy and tax reductions, were determined to take more than $25,000,000 in additional taxes out of the pockets of the people of Wisconsin; and, in the second place these taxes they insisted, must be borne by those least able to bear the burden.

These statements are grounded on facts, and I would like to quote a few of the official statistics of authentic surveys by our state tax-commission.

They show that the chief income tax amendment offered by the Republican administration proposed to increase income taxes 55.8 per cent in the very low brackets, and only eight one hundredths of one percent on those receiving one hundred thousand dollars a year or more of income.

Moreover, this Republican tax would have shot taxes on small business up by 620 per cent, while increasing the tax on powerful corporations by only three per cent.

The intolerant injustice of these tax plans becomes even more glaring when we consider other steps taken by this same Republican administration. On the one hand they have demanded higher and higher taxes on those with small incomes, while on the other they actually reduced taxes on very large estates.

It is a matter of record that the present administration has sloshed one million dollars in inheritance taxes on large estates, presumably as a dividend for those who invested so heavily in the campaign last year.

Thus we have the amazing picture of a state administration using one hand to seize more and more of taxes from those with the least capacity to pay, while using the other

PICTURE OF YOUTH

A portrait of an individual appearing on page 355 of Prof. Mary Swartz Rose's "The Foundations of Nutrition" (Macmillan, 1938) is a fine likeness, I take it, of Mickey Mouse's great grampa. Incidentally a legend explains that the picture is used by courtesy of Prof. H. C. Sherman and M. R. Sandals. In referring again to Prof. H. C. Sherman's "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition" (Macmillan, 1937), one fails to find the portrait or indeed any similar illustration in the chapter on vitamin G. As a teacher Prof. Sherman seems to be a prolific author; as an author Prof. Rose is a fine teacher.

Dr. Rose points out that when the picture of Mickey's forebear was made he was 8 months of age and weighed less than he had weighed at the age of 4 weeks. His failure to grow and his senile appearance are due to lack of vitamin G.

In the portrait the eyes of the wizened old fellow seem almost closed. One wonders whether he has cataract. In the same chapter Dr. Rose tells how cataracts may be produced, in rats, mice, chicks, monkeys, by a diet adequate in other respect but deficient or lacking in vitamin G. If the lens degeneration so produced has not been allowed to progress too far, the cataract prevented or cured, by restriction to ample vitamin G to reduce the opacity of the lens.

If Prof. Rose gains a good lead over Prof. Sherman in the chapter on vitamin G, he nearly catches up with her in the chapter on calcium. While Prof. Rose presents an appetizing picture of an assortment of foods rich in calcium, presents a picture of twin brother's skeletons.

Blind 30 Years, Appleton Man Is Baseball and Football Fan

It was 30 years ago today that E. W. St. Clair, 702 S. State street, lost his sight in a weird tragedy on the streets of Black Creek. He was 30 years old then, the principal of Black Creek school. He was a former Lawrence student, a member of what was then the Delta Iota fraternity. He liked baseball and football.

Today, at 60 years of age, Mr. St. Clair has behind him a stirring record of adjustments to one of the most stunning blows that could befall man—blindness. Today he reads books on a wide range of subjects. Today he listens to Wisconsin football games and wishes the Reds hadn't gone burlesque in that fatal 10th inning at Cincinnati.

It was the evening of Oct. 12, 1909, Mr. St. Clair was walking downtown in Black Creek. There was a snowstorm that evening. He was passing a hardware store. He glanced in the window. There was a terrifying explosion and he fell to the walk, his face bleeding.

This is what had happened: The proprietor of the store had been bird hunting that day. Returning to his store in the early evening, he began loading his shotgun. He had the counter. One of the shells discharged just as Mr. St. Clair was passing. Bird shot penetrated both of the school principal's eyes, blinding him for life.

Wife Assumes Duties
The fall term of school had been in session three weeks. A Columbus day program had been held that afternoon. A week later, Mrs. St. Clair took over her husband's duties.

Three months later Mr. St. Clair left for the Wisconsin School for the Blind at Janesville. He was able to be about now. His physical wounds were healed, but the sternest task lay yet before him—the problem of re-aligning his philosophy to cope with this tragedy, of finding ways to read without sight, of learning to visit easily again with old friends.

At Janesville he learned the rudiments of reading and writing, without the need of sight. He began with a primer, tracing the elevated dots on paper placed in the various positions which indicate the letters in the alphabet. The principal of a school beginning all over again, with a primer.

A year later the St. Clair family moved to Appleton. His wife, his fraternity brothers, and other friends joined forces in helping him re-establish himself in community life.

He became intimately acquainted with the streets of the city. He could find street numbers anywhere sidewalks were built. He intensified his studies, mastering the difficult New York point in a few months. Finally he could read the monthly Ziegler magazine, published for the blind.

Braille System Changed
The World War increased the number of blind people and was the direct cause of a complete revision in the Braille system. Mr. St. Clair had to learn all over again. It took years of tedious work to master the new system. But he finally did—and today he reads books on philosophy, politics, religion, (he has the entire Bible in Braille) science, history, and literature. One of his favorites is the All Story Braille magazine from the public library.

To Mr. St. Clair and to others who shared his misfortune science brought a blessing—radio. Since its development, radio has been the source of immeasurable entertainment and happiness to him. It brings him the stories of football and baseball games, drama, and music. His favorite chair is in front of the radio, with a book to read by the touch of his fingers when waiting for his favorite programs.

Mr. St. Clair was born in Northport. He went to Antigo High school and played on its football team. Last summer he went back to Northport for a homecoming; he had a great time shaking hands with old friends and re-telling stories of bygone years.

Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair have one son, Dr. Kenneth St. Clair, who teaches history and economics at Pikeville college, Pikeville, Ky. Mrs. St. Clair taught several years in the Appleton public schools.

Edison PTA Will Hear School Heads

'How Our Schools Meet Changing Needs' Will Be Discussed

Three Appleton speakers will present various aspects of "How Our Schools Meet Changing Needs" in a panel discussion at the October meeting of Edison Parent-Teachers association, at 7:30 Monday night at Edison school.

Homer Benton, member of the school board, B. J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, and Miss Martha Sorensen, grade school supervisor, will present the subject. An open discussion with Gordon McIntyre in charge will follow the panel talks.

Rohan will discuss general changes in the Appleton school system, while Benton will explain how the school board meets changing needs in education. Miss Sorensen will speak of educational changes and how they are met in her field of grade school work. The committee of parents in charge of the program include Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McIntyre. Parents of first grade children will be hosts and hostesses for the evening, working with Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Grist, co-chairman of the hospitality committee for the year.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS ACIDS

Help 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes Flush Out Poisonous Waste
If you have an excess of acids in your blood, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may be overworked. These tiny filters and tubes are working day and night to help Nature rid your system of excess acids and poisonous waste.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause passing backache, rheumatic pain, ice pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or restless passages with enuring and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Kidneys may need help the same as bowels, as ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MR. ST. CLAIRE ENJOYS RADIO, BOOK

One of the great sources of happiness for E. W. St. Clair, 702 S. State street, who has been blind 30 years, is the radio. He is shown above, seated near the machine, with a Braille book in his lap. It was 30 years ago today that Mr. St. Clair was blinded by the accidental discharge of a shotgun as he passed a store in Black Creek. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Announces Change in Social Security Setup

All wages, regardless of the age of the worker, are taxable under the social security program, by action of congress, according to Raymond G. Mayrand, deputy collector of internal revenue, who urges all workers who have not registered to do so as soon as possible with the district social security office at Green Bay. Workers over 65 years of age who did not register because of the age limit, should do so now, he said, provided they are not in the exempted classes. The act of congress is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1939.

Dresses are Displayed At Senior High School

A dress display, made by the advanced dressmaking classes of Miss Mildred Nickel, home economics instructor, is being exhibited at Appleton High school. The girls whose projects are shown are Elmyra Behnke, Bernadette Clark, Arlene Massonette, Marion Maves, Dorothy Peters, Eldine Petznick, Arlene Steger, Bernice Suttner, Frances Taylor, LaVerne Tillman and Shirley Wiesler.

Red Cross Cautions Against Improper Use of Firearms

With the duck season in full swing, the pheasant season coming up Oct. 14 and the deer and bear season not so far off, the American Red cross through its Outagamie county office today cautioned hunters to be careful this fall with firearms.

About 2,500 lives are claimed each year as a result of the careless handling of firearms, according to Mrs. Mabel O. Shannon, executive secretary.

Fatal hunting accidents are responsible for half of the firearm fatalities each year. "In most cases, carelessness and the use of a gun by an inexperienced person are the underlying reasons for firearm fatalities," she said. "A properly handled gun in the hands of an experienced hunter should not be a lethal instrument. Yet, extreme caution should be taken by those planning to hunt this year."

Few firearm accidents would occur if certain simple precautions were observed, Mrs. Shannon said. Some of the more important rules, which need no further explanation, are:

- Cites Rules
- Never point a gun toward yourself or any other person.
 - Always inspect the barrel of a gun through the breech, not the muzzle.
 - Loaded guns should never be carried in an automobile, wagon or boat (except when hunting from a boat.)
 - Never grasp a gun by the barrel to lift it or draw it to you—take hold of it near the breech.

When loading a gun be sure no one is in the path of the muzzle.

Never pull a gun through a fence with you. Lay the gun so that it can be picked up safely from the other side.

Timing Vital Factor in Use Of High Card

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Yesterday, I pointed out that many players, proceeding on the theory that "an ace is an ace," and horrified at the thought of losing one of these beautiful cards, invariably cash them in at the first opportunity. I stated that, as a habit, this is just as bad as, or worse than, hanging on to an ace until it is extracted by brute force. Today's hand illustrates the danger and waste of "hanging on."

The bidding:
South West North East
1 club Pass 1 diamond Pass
1 no trump Pass 2 no trump Pass
Pass Pass

North's second bid was a shade ambitious. A single raise to two no trump would have been sufficient even though he had two and one-half honor tricks and a five card suit. If his diamond suit had been a shade stronger, something like A K 10 9 2, his actual choice would have been justified. However, thanks to a timely bit of cooperation from the defense, the game contract was fulfilled.

West opened the spade queen and declarer, more afraid of a heart shift than he was of the spade suit, won with the king in dummy and started his clubs by leading the jack. East, a player who cherishes his aces and hates to part with them, ducked and, of course the jack held. Now the club seven was led and East had the questionable privilege of winning a trick that contained no honor at all except his own beloved ace. The contract was now in the matter of a kill. Declarer won the spade return, ran off three more clubs, then collected the ace and king of diamonds and the heart ace.

Almost all players have learned that they should "cover an honor with an honor." Indeed, they depend too blindly on this not always applicable principle, but unfortunately their training has not been so complete in the matter of killing adverse honors. Technically speaking, when a defender plays an ace on a jack, queen or king, he is not covering, because the word "cover" implies the sacrifice of the covering card. But, as important as it sometimes is to sacrifice an honor or by covering, thereby to establish a trick in one's own or partner's hand, it is even more important to kill adverse honors. In this specific case there are many reasons why East should play the club ace on the jack. First and foremost, he should "kill" the jack. Second, by winning the trick he may preserve a club stopper—entry in his partner's hand which will be valuable in running the spade suit. Third (which is really an extension of the first reason), by capturing the jack, East may promote a card in partner's hand that otherwise would not take a trick. It is this latter fact that works out in the case in point. If East smother the club jack, South never can take more than three club tricks, but when the jack holds and the ace is put to no better use than capturing low cards, four club tricks inevitably develop. Obviously, in this deal, South cannot get the fulfilling trick in any of the other clubs.

Beauty and You

—by PATRICIA LINDSAY

As the "duty" season settles down for a long winter stay we all are inclined to slack up on exercise. Our days fall into a routine and we find ourselves getting up, going to business (or doing our housework) eating lunch and dinner, and going to bed. This schedule is occasionally broken by a festive evening. But we do not plan on any definite hour or time for exercise. And if the weather is a little nippy we even sacrifice short walks—the one form of exercise which should be indulged in daily; if not for three miles at least for two.

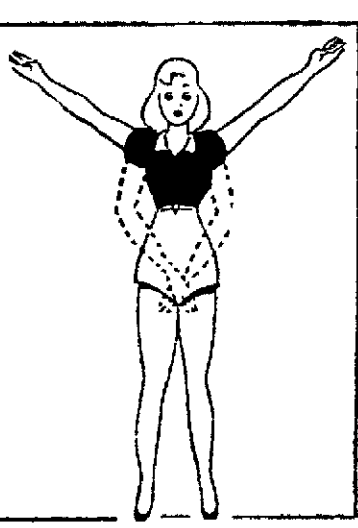

The result? We get the working-shoulder aches. From our necks to our spines, we ache! We feel miserable besides, and instead of getting up and going through a corrective exercise routine, we fall into bed earlier, feeling "a good sleep" will make us feel better. The good sleep only makes us feel worse!

Those unused muscles are crying to be stretched! "Stretch out my kinks," each is signaling, but we pay no heed! That, my dears, is a mistake we will in time regret, when a dowager's hump and a weakened back is ours.

Authorities Advise
Neils Bukh, Denmark's foremost physical training instructor, who is considered a world leading adviser, composed the following rhythmic exercises for working-shoulder aches. He claims that shoulder aches, round shoulders and uneven shoulders are counteracted by exercises in which the arms are flung, circled and stretched. Here is his suggestion:

Exercise 1—In a standing position, feet slightly apart, circle each arm rapidly and vigorously—first to the right, then to the left. Fists should be clenched and elbows extended.

Exercise 2—Standing with legs slightly farther apart, circle both arms together clockwise and then counter clockwise, until you feel the need to draw a deep breath.

Exercise 3—Cross your arms low in front of the body and then fling them upward and backward to a strong backward stretched "flying position." Rise on your toes as you fling them. Fall back on your entire foot when you bring them down. Do this rhythmically. A slow "one two."

Exercise 4—Rising and lowering yourself as in Exercise 3, fling one arm backward and the other forward. Then reverse movement.

Exercise 5—When your shoulders seem wilted, or if one is lower than the other do this simple exercise two or three times a day. Shrug the lower shoulder vigorously by bringing it up to your ear. Then move your shoulder rhythmically forward, upward and backward, in a complete semi-circle. Shrug both shoulders in this fashion to correct a sway back or to ease tension of shoulder muscles.

Send for my leaflet "Banishing the Dowager's Hump" which gives you more neck and shoulder exercise. Write for it in care of the Post-Crescent and enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope to cover postage.

Child Needs Opportunity to Develop Strongest Talent

—BY ANGELO PATRI

What makes life so interesting for us all is the differences between us. To each of us has been given some form of power and the success of our lives depends upon the development of the peculiar gift we have. This is what makes a varied and rich curriculum, especially in junior and senior high schools, imperative. Each child should have the opportunity of developing his strongest talent to its fullest degree. And this imposes a duty on the gifted child.

All gifted children are not ambitious to cultivate their powers. Some are, and some have to be pushed into it day after day until the first feeling of discomfort wears off. There is always that feeling of rebellion against doing any kind of creative work. High workmanship takes a lot out of the worker. It hurts. Healthy children dislike being held down to the grindstone of labor, and that is calling things by their right name even when we insist the children gifted in drawing, draft, those who are musical, play, those who are actors, art, arts and crafts, done to a high degree of achievement, are laborers of painful and exacting effort. It is only natural when children try to escape them as they often do. Only complete genius loses itself in creative labor.

The pupil who can learn with accuracy and speed and recite with ease, expression, knows what success costs in fatigue and weariness of brain and body. He knows the exacting toll that study and recitation takes from him. He does not enjoy this feeling of exhaustion and black discouragement that occasionally overtakes him, and it is only natural for him to want to escape it if he can.

Of course he cannot. Nobody can. It becomes the duty of the teacher and parents to hold the gifted child, whatever his talent, to the exactions of his gift, to the high standard of workmanship it demands of him. A student who can excel is failing when he gets a passing mark only and is content with that. He is tired. He needs rest, then encouragement, then pressure for work to a standard. He must work.

The only difficulty about this whole matter is in discovering the true talent. Parents and teachers would like to bestow talent on every child that comes their way. Some children are bright for a number of grades, then they slow down; some show a strong tendency to work along some line of their choosing, and then lose interest in it; some show a talent and ability to develop it highly right through their school courses. Shall the teacher and parents drive all these children to high accomplishment? They cannot.

It is natural for all children to resent effort and fatigue. Gifted children do not tire as easily as those who have less talent, but they tire in time. The difference between them is that the truly talented child can respond again after rest while the one whose gift has reached its limits cannot go beyond the point he has reached.

This means that when a child persistently fails to reach the high standard of talent, he is not truly talented. He has some ability which has reached its height of development. The truly talented one will go on and on, far beyond his companions, until he, too, reaches the crest of his power, maybe in mid-adolescence, maybe in old age. But sometime. No every child cannot get A, nor B plus. And some A children do arrive at the place where they must be content with a B. Just feel your way along. The children usually do what they CAN do.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and teachers as to the best method of development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

WEDDING ARRANGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to have a very small wedding at home. Should the groom and I face the guests during the ceremony? I know that at a church wedding we would not do this, but I thought that perhaps at home it might be different.

Answer: No—you face the clergyman, and the clergyman faces the guests.

THE TRUTH AT LEAST COST

Dear Mrs. Post: I know you have written time and again that a divorcee cannot wear a white wedding veil when she remarries. But if it makes a serious difference to the bride, and nobody else knows she is a divorcee, do you still think it would be so dreadful? Of course I am talking about myself, and I am engaged to a really wonderful man. His mother, who is really a darling, thinks divorce is simply terrible, and if she should find out that I am a divorcee I don't know what would happen. She would be shocked, and he would be miserable. Since she does not know, isn't it the only thing to do to save her feelings? Of course my fiancé knows about this—but no one else does because I've always been called, "Miss" since living here.

Answer: Really this would be a very wrong thing to do from every angle. The very fact of keeping it a secret from her will make it a discovery in a tragic evidence of your untrustworthiness. If you tell her now, it may be temporarily unpleasant but there will be nothing to threaten your future happiness. In my opinion, I think her son should go to her at once and tell her that you and he both want her to know the truth. No matter how great the shock she will get over it—in time. But to pretend to be an unmarried girl (which you are not) would be to risk your whole future. Even your husband could never quite trust you. No, my dear, your wedding must be honest, even if your mother-in-law will not come to it. She will forgive you this way—but never if you go through with this untruth.

PROMONICATION

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me how to pronounce TOMATO. The dictionaries seem to give two different pronunciations, but I want to know which you think is correct.

Answer: According to best social usage, the word is pronounced to-mah-to. However, many Americans not only say, but prefer, to-may-to.

GIRL INVITES MAN

Dear Mrs. Post: When my young daughter asks a young man to our house for dinner, should the invitation come from me or from her?

Answer: A girl older than ten should write her own notes and invite her own friends.

Wife's First Obligation

Is Her Home?

Dear Miss Dix—Should a man's wife leave him and go to wait on her sick kink for months at a time when she is almost an invalid herself?

Answer: I think not. Her duty is to herself and you.

Masculine Aversions to Illness May be Cause of Philandering

—BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Three years ago I married a man who seemed very much in love with me. We both continued to work and in addition to my work outside of the home I kept house and made him a pleasant home. When he lost his job, I stood by and supported the family and did everything possible to help him up. Then came the baby, and my health was so shattered that for some time all I could do was just to crawl around the house and look after the baby as well as I could, and as we couldn't afford a maid, some things had to go undone. During this time my husband started treating me very coldly. He was hours late in coming home and had nothing to say to me when he did come. I found out that he was running around with a young girl. Now I have recovered my health and my husband appears to have recovered his interest in me, but his conduct has changed something in me. I feel that he let me down when I needed him most. He didn't stand by me as I had stood by him, and I feel that I can never love or trust him again as I did. I have lost all confidence in him. Do you think I should go on living with him with this awful truth staring me in the face? DESERTE.

DOROTHY DIX

As I did. I have lost all confidence in him. Do you think I should go on living with him with this awful truth staring me in the face? DESERTE.

Answer: If all the wives whose husbands have roamed away from their sickbeds want his mind taken off his troubles, he starts to running around and gets into messes that he never intended. Predatory women are always on the lookout for their sick, invalid wives, and thus it often happens that a wife's sickness is more disastrous to her husband than it is to her.

Evidently your husband belongs in the class of what might be called "fair weather" husbands. They like their wives to be pretty, strong and well, able to run around with them, go places and do things, but they have no vocation for nursing. They will never sit by their wives' sickbeds and hold their hands, or stroke their fevered brows, but for all of that they may be highly desirable mates for women.

So I think you will be a wise woman to forget and forgive your husband for amusing himself with a pretty girl while you were sick. Inasmuch as he does not seem to have fallen in love with her and his old affection for you has reawakened. Just charge it off to the masculine aversion for illness and let it go at that. But look after your health. Keep husky.

Here's Case Where Boy Should Marry Girl

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a girl of 17 and I come from a fine family, but I would not listen to their counsel. I am about to become an unwed mother and my child's father is also 17. His mother does not wish him to marry me and he has to give in to her because he has no work and she supports him. Would it be wise to force him to marry me or should I marry another boy of 21, who has a very bad reputation but who is willing to give my baby a name to prove his love?

Answer: One of the most cruel wrongs that any human being can commit is to bring a child into the world with the curse of illegitimacy on it. It is a stigma that nothing can remove and that blights its whole life. Always the innocent one has to pay for the sins of its parents.

So I think you should force the father of this child to marry you and give it his name, even if he divorces you the day after the infant is born. That will save appearances to a great extent, and appearances are very important in this world. It will also make it easier for your parents to take you back home if you are married and your child has a name. It will keep children from taunting it with having no father when it goes to school, and if you want to give it for adoption many people would be willing to take it if it were illegitimate.

Surely if you go to the boy's mother and plead with her to let

After A Man's Heart

—by JEAN RANDALL

YESTERDAY: Tim Corliss insists on leaving when he finds that foreman Atkins rented the ranch without knowledge of the owner. But his car smashes and he is injured. Buff postpones a showdown with Atkins.

Chapter Four

RUFF RECOVERS A NURSE
Mrs. Webb was innocent of any participation in the affair, Buff soon discovered.

"I'm sorry Mr. Corliss hurt himself," she said, "but I'm glad he's going to stay here a while longer. I said to Atkins he done right well for Mr. Corliss to find a boarder so soon, and one as nice as Mr. Corliss."

Buff visited the injured man about noon of the next day. Atkins reported that he had had a fairly good night under the influence of the doctor's little pills, though his ankle gave him some pain. He looked up with a twisted grin.

"Go on," he advised. "Say it!"
"Say what?"
"That classic observation of your sex. I told you so. You did, as a matter of fact. I acknowledge it freely. If I'd wanted till this morning I'd have been in Boulder long before this."

"It never occurred to me to say it," was the girl's indignant retort. "I'm sorry—terribly sorry—this had to happen to you. I feel like apologizing for our road. Atkins is going to have some of the worst boulders taken out immediately."

"Atkins is staying on then?"
She flushed. "For the present, yes." She grinned at him. "My father says he's an able man. I don't like him. I'd call him a damned fool."

"He glanced down to where his bandaged ankle was protected from pressure of the bedclothes by an ingenious framework of the foreman's devising. "It's lucky for me he's here. Doctor coming out today?"

"Yes. Why? Are you in so much pain?" Buff asked anxiously.
"No pain amount to anything. I don't know how soon I can move that's all."

She was too good a nurse to pursue the subject knowing what the doctor's verdict would be. Instead she darkened the room and slipped away with no more than a friendly nod toward Corliss.

For several days the patient was kept under the influence of sedatives. Then they were withdrawn and both Atkins and Buff had their hands full with their patient. Rested, his ankle giving him no pain, he was determined to return to Boulder.

"If I could hobble from the car to the house with Atkins' help and this ankle not even strapped, I shouldn't be driven to Boulder, a matter of two hours at the most," he argued.

You might tear the ligaments loose," Buff said. She tactfully refrained from pointing out two facts he had chosen to ignore: that she had helped Atkins on that painful journey from car to house, and that Corliss had collapsed at the end of it.

"See here, young man, you don't know when you're well off," Dr. Westland scolded. "You're getting the kind of rest you've been needing for months. Talked to your Boulder man and I know the sort of fix you were in when he sent you out here. You promised him to stay at least a month. Well, you're going to keep that promise, or get another physician, understand? Aside from any other consideration, I don't want you rarin' round on that ankle. Relax, relax, follow, and thank your lucky stars you landed here where you have one of the best cooks in the state, your own private valet, and Miss Buff to look after you."

Tim ceased his protests but with a return of that lassitude and indifference which disgusted the two women.

Buff had thrown herself into the care of the invalid the more heartily because the telegrams and letters from Canada, although they were exactly what Eleanor had outlined to Lance, hurt her unbearably.

It was not alone the realization that her parents wished to be by themselves; it was her own knowledge that she had reversed the old theme of the "possessive" mother or father. She had few interests of her own and they were by way of being by-products of Lance's. To amuse him when he was recovering from an attack of influenza, she had written a one-act play about two of his cartoon characters. Tim, immensely delighted, had submitted it to a producer and it had been a hit.

Now she could look back and see how he had encouraged her to do the satirical bits which had gone to short stories; the serious short story which she had begun this summer here at the ranch. It was not, she knew now, so much fatherly pride in her cleverness, as an attempt to help her to a life of her own. Lance in the role of wise father! Eleanor, the farseeing and therefore troubled mother. Buff could not find her amusing if talented charges in there adults. She was bewildered, cut to the quick even though she realized they were right and she had been oh, so wrong; most of all she felt the world—her own fascinating will not come to it. She will forgive you this way—but never if you go through with this untruth.

It's Quite a Trick to Escape From World of Dirty Politics

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Found Ridge, Conn.—Up here where I live, away from it all, political strife is brewing, because so many people have come up to get away from it all that we aren't away from it all at all any more.

A dozen years ago it was very quiet; the roads were rough and the village store sold overalls, patent medicines and licorice whips. Now the roads are very well kept and the store sells imported ale, charged water and camembert. It is still quiet enough as far as actual noise is concerned, except that sometimes, when the moon is full, the dogs argue among the hills until all hours, and one city man—a country hoosier, at that—complained that a nearby chicken farm which was there long before he moved up was driving him crazy with all that crowing and carrying on so early in the morning.

It is political disquiet that disturbs the beautiful countryside, and it is not so much heard as felt, although there have been some processions and some meetings fraught with angry oratory.

It seems that among those who saw the place first and restored abandoned farmhouses or built new dwellings there was apprehension lest too many refugees from the mental moul of the city and not just the right type follow them into this paradise—an objection which suggests that a zoning problem may arise one day even in heaven. For this reason it was decided that the region be zoned and that, among other restrictions, building plots should be at least two acres in extent. There was objection to that right away on the ground that of the local young men and women, who were only little kids when we started to beautify nature with nursery trees and lawn furniture, many could not afford two acres, particularly at small parcel prices, which are proportionately higher than the prices of big acreage.

That is true, and in his phase the zoning ordinance can be attacked as an act to discourage matrimony and drive these young people out of the community in which they were born and in which, in many cases, their ancestors fought the Indians and the British over these very hills.

The Political Lines Confuse The Confusion

Soon an agitation began to array the country people against the city folks, but the political line is badly snarled, because the zoning people include some straight descendants of local pioneers, while the other side includes some Johnny-come-lately from town. The head man of the anti-zoning party, who is running for supervisor—a $3,000 job—not only works in New York but has expressed his intention to deputize, or farm out, the routine duties of the office to a personal representative because he will be too busy in the city to give them his personal attention.

There are some other confusing angles, too. For instance, the country ticket, led by city people, would open the region to bungalow settlements of city people, who would thus increase to a hopeless degree the very preponderance against which the present campaign is directed.

Another thing is that this new ticket is Democratic in an old-time liver-to-kiver Republican district but calls itself the Citizens ticket, which is an insinuation that the Republicans, both city and country aren't really citizens at all but civic and political declarees, like convicts and lunatics. Some of our people feel pretty insulted about that. And, further to confuse the confusion, the new dealers of the Citizens party are raising a hue and cry against the incumbent Republicans for trying to establish a self-perpetuating political monopoly—which is a fine thing coming from anyone who indorses a third term for the president. I am not sure but that those who oppose the new ticket may be deemed to have knifed President Roosevelt in a critical time.

Shows What Can Be Done With Prejudice

There is almost no industry around any more. The farming is negligible, the old family industries, such as piecework sewing on clothing and hand-made shoes, vanished long ago, and New York money is almost the only money that finds its way into local circulation. It is kind of funny to find city ference might not be what he wished for his patient.

"No, no business," he said when she broached the subject. "But it would do him a lot of good to see somebody he likes. Go ahead and ask him."

Weekes appeared Saturday afternoon and Buff liked him at first sight. A somewhat plump person, in spite of his constant physical activity, he radiated good nature. Gray eyes twinkled behind inconspicuous eye-glasses on a black cord. His grin was infectious. He shook hands with Buff and thanked her for her care of Tim.

"The old boy's had a hard row to hoe in the last year. If it hasn't been one thing, it's been a gang of 'em. He tell you about—" He stopped abruptly, peered at her, then changed the subject. "It's mighty nice of you to invite me out here, Miss Carroll! Is there anything you want to say to me about people who are, on the whole, inclined to prejudice and to exclude others, individually and en masse, themselves attacked as undesirable on the proposition that if you let one city family get a foothold their relatives and friends will soon overrun you and eventually run you out. The suggestion that the city people are not even citizens, not even Americans, is the topper. It is funny, but it shows you what can be done with an appeal to prejudice against the cut of another man's job or his nose.

And it was so lovely and quiet up here away from it all until it all followed us up.

old Tim—aside from avoiding mention of business?"

"Not a thing! If you'll follow me—" She led the way up to where the injured man awaited his partner and friend.

George Weekes' voice boomed out genially.

"Well, well, you old tenderfoot! Thought you could drive that coffee-pot of yours straight up Audubon, trail or no trail! How do you

Miss Martha Van Dera Becomes Bride at Little Chute Church

MISS MARTHA VAN DERA, daughter of Mrs. Henry Van Dera, route 1, Kaukauna, and Arthur Hendricks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hendricks, route 4, Appleton, were married at 8 o'clock this morning at St. John church, Little Chute, the Very Rev. John J. Sprangers reading the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by the Misses Lorraine Van Dera and Gladys Green, while Henry Van Dera, brother of the bride, and Edward Hendricks, brother of the groom, attended Mr. Hendricks.

A reception, including dinner for 60 guests and supper for 180, is being held during the day at the home of the bride's mother. There will be a wedding dance in the evening at the Nitsingale ballroom.

The couple will reside on a farm at Freedom.

Zuelke-Bieck
Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rieck, Weyauwega, and their son, Postmaster L. J. Rieck, went to Milwaukee for the wedding of another son, Albert J. Rieck, who was united in marriage to Miss Alice J. Zuelke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zuelke, 3242 N. Cambridge avenue, Milwaukee, Oct. 9, at St. Robert's church, Milwaukee, by the Rev. Farrell Reilly. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. George Hoveland, brother-in-law and sister of the bride. The newlyweds will be at home at 2330 W. Roosevelt drive, Milwaukee. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Weyauwega High school.

Keating-Moody
Miss Grace Keating, daughter of James Keating, Waupaca, and David Moody, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Moody, Laredo, Texas, formerly Weyauwega, were married at Laredo. The couple was a first cousin of the bridegroom and Mrs. M. M. Valentini. The bride is a graduate of V. H. High school and the bridegroom a graduate of Weyauwega High school. They make their home at Laredo.

30 Senior School Journalists Will Attend Conclave

Talisman, Clarion to be Represented at Editor's Conference

More than 30 student journalists from Appleton High school will attend the twentieth annual Wisconsin high school editors' conference sponsored each year by the school of journalism of the University of Wisconsin. Sessions will begin Saturday morning, Oct. 21, and will end Sunday morning, Oct. 22. Both the Talisman, weekly newspaper, and the Clarion, yearbook of the high school, will be represented.

Delegates to the convention will register Saturday morning from 9 to 10 o'clock. The morning round-table discussions include "Gathering News Systematically," "Headlines and Copy Editing," and "Writing Advertising." Clinics for yearbook editors will be conducted all day by professional engravers and printers. Faculty advisers will have luncheon together at the University club, and a meeting of the Wisconsin Journalism Teachers' council will be held.

Roundtables will be resumed again in the afternoon, when students and advisers will discuss such problems as "Newsprints and Propaganda," "Where to Find Feature Stories" and "Advertising Layouts and Typography." At 6 o'clock Saturday evening the school of journalism will meet the delegates to the conference at a reception in the Memorial Union. The convention banquet will begin at 8:30. This year for the first time a dance will follow the dinner.

Criticism Period

Sunday morning the delegates will meet informally at critical roundtables at which staffs present newspapers and annuals for individual criticism. Beginning at 10:30 students will be taken on a tour of the campus, which will contain stories written by delegates, to be issued. The convention will adjourn at noon.

Faculty advisers who will act as chaperons to the Appleton delegation are Miss Eleanor Fredrickson, commercial instructor, and Miss Ellen Sweet, English instructor, and Miss Annabelle Wolf, English instructor, and Miss Enola Brandt, Latin instructor, advisers to the Clarion.

Brillion Auxiliary Installs Officers

Brillion — Twenty-eight members and two guests and all the old and new officers were present at the meeting of the American Legion auxiliary at the Legion hall Monday evening. October marks the beginning of a new year in auxiliary work. Mrs. H. G. Muehlebach, Harry Henry, and Miss Harriet Andrews were in charge of the program. Mrs. Horn conducted the ceremony during which the old officers gave up their chairs to the newly elected ones. This was followed by assembly singing. Miss Emma Horn gave a reading on "A Membership in the Auxiliary and What It Means." Miss Harriet Andrews gave a reading on the significance of Halloween. The vice president, Mrs. Paul Engel, presented the newly installed president, Miss Harriet Andrews, with a corsage and promised her support during the coming year.

During the business meeting which followed the program a report was given on the Calumet County Council meeting at New Holstein by Miss Lillian Schlei. Delegates reports were given on the district fall conference at Campbellsport by Miss Andrews and Mrs. Edward Janke. A report on the county installation at Stockbridge was given by Mrs. Paul Engel.

The president appointed the following chairmen of committees. Miss Mabel Luecker, executive board; Mrs. L. H. Hultberg, membership; Mrs. Carl Wolf, constitution and by-laws; Mrs. Arthur Lau, uniform; Mrs. Arthur Heimke, sunshine; and the three general committee chairmen appointed for the next year were Mrs. John Eggen, committee No. 1; Mrs. William Brown, committee No. 2; and Mrs. Paul Engel, committee No. 3. It was decided to have the annual presidents banquet in connection with the regular meeting of the unit on Nov. 13th. The committee appointed to make arrangements for the affair consists of Mrs. Arthur Neumeier, chairman, Mrs. Joseph Ecker, Mrs. Paul Engel and Mrs. William Brown. It was also decided to have their annual rummage sale on Nov. 4 this year. A new member, Mrs. R. D. O. Andrews, was admitted into the organization.

After the meeting a Halloween game was enjoyed in which prizes were awarded to Mrs. Otto Bartz, Mrs. Frank Horn and Miss Lillian Schlei. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the evening's entertainment.

BETTY GRABLE STARTS ANOTHER ROMANCE

After her divorce from Jackie Coogan, actress Betty Grable answered queries about a reported romance with Artie Shaw, band leader, by saying "He's just a fellow I've been going out with." But she added she couldn't wed anyway until her divorce is final a year hence. Shaw and Miss Grable are shown dining in a Hollywood restaurant on the eve of her divorce.

Presbyterian Guild to Stage 'Talking Cookbook' at Church

PROMISING to be some of the most unusual entertainment offered here in a long time, a Talking Cookbook will be presented Wednesday night, Oct. 18, in the dining room of Memorial Presbyterian church by the Presbyterian Guild. Featured in the program will be some of the best cooks in the congregation, women whose breads and cakes and salads are famous throughout the city. The demonstrations will be given at tables placed before the windows which connect the dining room with the kitchen, so that foodstuffs that need to be cooked can be passed back to the kitchen to be put on the stove.

Mrs. S. C. Shannon will demonstrate foods made with yeast, such as breads, coffee cakes and raised doughnuts. Mrs. F. F. Martin, Neenah, a former member of the congregation, will tell how she makes the delicious doughnuts for which she is well known. Mrs. John Van Caster, whose Belgian ancestry is probably responsible for her excellent pastries and pies, will demonstrate pie making, assisted by Mrs. E. A. Kotke and Mrs. Carl Schroeder.

"Putting the Wings in Angel Food Cake" might be a propitiate for Mrs. Walter Rogers' part of the program. An expert on the subject, she will give hints on how to attain perfection in making angel food cake.

Mrs. Wilmer Rehbein, who was a home economics teacher before she was married, will discuss salad dressings. Mrs. John Oliver will speak on Scottish cooking, including the shortbread for which her people are famous. Mrs. Edward F. Milke will demonstrate open-face sandwiches, which will be made by Mrs. Joseph Foley, and hors d'oeuvres.

Candy Making
The adeptness of Mrs. Earl Fraser and Miss Dorothy Schenck at the art of making candy, from simple fudge to complicated creams, has won them a place on the program. They will discuss candy making. Mrs. Harold Heller, costumed as an Aunt Jemima, will be mistress of ceremonies for the program. Mrs. William Farnum will be at the piano, playing background music and accompanying the cake walk dance. The committee plans to include in the program a group of southern songs sung by a quart.

The program will not be long. The committee has announced, as some of the cooking demonstrations will last only three or four minutes. There will be three comedy interludes, the first to be devoted to advertising, the second to a style show and the third, to a cake walk.

J. Henry Stowe will act as auctioneer for the cake walk. Prizes will be awarded, and after the program coffee and doughnuts will be served. Recipes will be sold to those who want them. The doors will open at 7:45.

Hull Convinced U. S. Will Not be Drawn Into European War

New York—It is Secretary Hull's firm belief the United States will maintain its neutrality and steer clear of the European war. In a speech to the twenty-sixth annual foreign trade convention last night he said 21 American republics were determined not to be engulfed in the conflict and are doing everything possible to preserve their neutrality.

When the war is over, he continued, America must bend its efforts toward an expansion of sound international economic relations and an enduring peace.

In a message read to the convention, President Roosevelt said it was necessary for business men to maintain "those liberal principles and practices upon which our commercial policy is based" since business' economic well-being is "inextricably mingled with the nation's well-being."

Galilean Travelog Is Presented at Chilton

Chilton — The Galilean travelog, by Stephen A. Haboush, native Galilean shepherd, sponsored by the Chilton Kiwanis club, was well attended at the Chilton High school auditorium Tuesday evening.

Haboush presented a musical travelog, "On Sacred Soil," depicting the wonders of Jerusalem and Bethlehem, assisted by his wife and several other assistants. A feature of the program was an illuminating exposition of the Twenty-Third Psalm done in original Galilean costumes.

According to the members of the Kiwanis club the reason for sponsoring the appearance of the Galilean shepherd in Chilton was because one of the purposes of the club is to promote interest in religion and attendance at churches. It has a standing committee on religion and welfare recovery, which is a non-sectarian group including all denominations and types of religious organizations.

American Indian Lore Wisconsin Indians Made No Attempt to Color Pottery

BY PHEBE JEWELL NICHOLS (Mrs. Angus F. Lookaround)

The term Indian pottery invariably brings to mind the pots, jars, and vases of the Indians of the southwest. Noted for its beauty of design and workmanship, this pottery has become famous all over the world. Perhaps the most noted pottery maker is Maria Martinez of San Idelfonso Pueblo, whose work received acclaim first at the century of progress exposition and who was presented later with the Indian Achievement award, a recognition given annually by the Indian Council fire of Chicago. This pottery, black and glossy as ebony due to a combination of clays and a process discovered and perfected by this clever Indian woman herself, has been highly praised by connoisseurs of the art and, in spite of its high price, is in popular demand.

Among the Indian relics unearthed by scientists in Wisconsin there have been found pots and portions of pottery obviously not native and bearing the unmistakable craft marks of the southwest and certainly brought hither through trade. But other potsherds, that is, fragments of broken earthen pots, have also been found in Wisconsin in Indian burials and numerous on old village sites. In some cases there have been found enough pieces to make possible the assembling of the original vessels some of which, with others in an almost perfect state of preservation, are in our museums. Students of archeology say that this native pottery is of two distinct cultures: the Winnebago or Siouian which is characteristically southern, perhaps Mayan, and the Algonquian (Menominee, Pottowatomi, Ojibway) which is definitely akin to Asiatic pottery. Of whatever culture, these Wisconsin-made pots had to be constructed of the clays found here, and Wisconsin earths are not of the kind that lend themselves to extensive pottery making.

Need For Containers
The need for containers other than those of birch bark, woven fibers and skins, brought about the making of these earthen vessels, and they were first and foremost utilitarian.

Examination of pottery made by Wisconsin Indians shows the objects to be almost universally tan or light brown mottled with blackish brown, made of clay that was mixed with grit to keep it from cracking. The decoration is simple and was impressed upon the clay when it was damp, often being padded out by the paddle having the design cut into it or by one wrapped in some fabric which left the imprint of its weave when the paddle struck the soft clay. Coarsely woven materials as the mats of nettle fibers and basswood were sometimes wrapped closely around the damp clay so that a sort of network all-over design would result. Also, cord was frequently wound about the outer surface to produce a similar appearance. There seems to have been no attempt to paint or apply color in any way to these pots.

In shape the pottery pieces found in Wisconsin are roundish and of all sizes, from one the pieces of which were found in Door county which when assembled made a pot which would hold two bushels (now in the Neville museum in Green Bay) to the small two and three-quart sizes. One method used in forming these pots is a matter of record in the oral lore of the Menominees and may be in the body of folk lore of all the other tribes as well, but the Menominees have made the facts known and chuckle about it, too as they relate it.

Describes Method
This method was as follows: Deciding upon the size of pot to be made, the potter wound a ball of twine compactly and tightly to that size. This twine or cord had been made from wood fibers and in sizes to meet the different home needs, and supplies of it were always on hand. Probably basswood, bark, or waykoop as the Menominees called it, was the fiber most in use by them as cord, twine, and rope.

The twine to be used for forming the pot was wound with the innermost end left long and out of the ball so that, as the twine was pulled as balls of yarn are frequently unwound. Then the Indian prepared his clay, using sufficient grit and working it into pliability. When it was ready, he applied it to the ball of twine with his hands and the help of a small paddle, covering the ball evenly, forming a base, sloping the shoulders to the neck and making the opening small or large as he wished. When he finished forming the vessel, he smoothed its surface by pulling to obliterate finger marks, and put on the design in one of the two ways described. Then he baked it, devising an oven of flat rocks around which he kept fires burning until its hardness and durability were assured. When the utensil was ready for use, the cord was pulled, and no matter how small the opening, out came the twine.

Phebe Nichols

leaving little ridged marks on the interior. These ridges themselves would have served to tell the story of how these pots were shaped, even if no oral record had survived to authenticate it. Other pots with mouths wider than their bases were molded to smooth rock selected for the purpose and baking fires for hardening built about and above them. These vessels were essentially cooking pots, but they were not long-lived, and few have been found intact, though innumerable pieces of them have been discovered on old Indian camping and village sites.

A valuable specimen recently acquired by the Milwaukee public museum stands 18 inches high, is 16 inches in diameter at the shoulder and is of a rich dark brown color. The design is a padded out cord design, that is the paddle was wrapped with cord for the purpose.

NEW HARD-WATER SUDS HELPS KEEP COLOR IN STOCKINGS!

Now see stockings keep their delicate sheerness and fresh color, amazingly longer! See woollens and underwear regain bride-like freshness and color. Colored prints sing with radiant sparkle! Results are startling because science has found a way to make a wonderful new suds, called Vel. Contains no alkali to fade colors. Neither can Vel form ruinous soap-scum, even in hardest water. You can feel this slippery, slimy scum in soap suds. But these amazing new Vel suds feel soft and pure. That's because Vel is not a soap. It's a special new hard-water suds perfected by Colgate. It makes as much as 5 times more suds than expensive soap flakes in hardest water. And it makes hardest water act soft as rainwater. You can see why Vel is better than soap flakes for fine fabrics, because Vel does not form a ring of soap-scum around the bowl. That proves Vel can't leave ruinous soap-scum in your stockings, underwear and woollens, to dull the sheerness and cause a "fuzzy" look.

The most thrilling proof is the radiant freshness, the soft newness, and lovelier color of ANYTHING you wash in Vel. So easy on hands, too, because Vel suds contain no acid, no alkali to irritate the skin. Buy Vel today at grocers. Made and guaranteed by Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Company.

Roy Goff, 31, route 1, Underhill, back injury and bruises.

Milo Austin, 23, Los Angeles, Calif., bruises.

Pearl Lyon, 18, route 2, Appleton, bruises.

Dorothy Weiland and Herman Weiland were injured when cars driven by Gilbert Weiland, 23, 314 N. Summit street, and W. L. Cohodes, 25, of the Wisconsin Distributing company, collided in the city at 12:10 this afternoon. Weiland was driving west on Atlantic street and Cohodes north on Appleton street when the collision occurred, according to police. The Weiland car tipped over. Dorothy Weiland is confined to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Brothers Hurt
Ruben and Roy Goff, brothers, were injured when a car driven by Robert Voeltnor, 35, 1927 Twenty-first street, Milwaukee, failed to make a turn and rolled over on Highway 47 about nine miles north of Appleton at 8:30 last night. The car landed upright after rolling over, according to Jack Frenz, county traffic officer.

Austin and Miss Lyon were injured when a car driven south on Mason street by Sam Sibley, 29, Memphis, Tenn., struck a pillar of the railroad viaduct about 11:15 last night. Sibley told police he was blinded by an oncoming car.

A team of horses and a taxi were involved in a collision on College avenue at 4:05 this morning. One of the horses was slightly injured when knocked down by the car driven by Harry Larson, 24, 525 N. Richmond street. The team, driven by George Doine, 65, 715 W. Packard street, and car were going in opposite directions when the accident occurred, it was reported to police.

Cars driven by Alfred Gress, 59, Sheboygan, and Lyman S. Tepoff, 27, 1629 W. Reeves street, were damaged in a minor collision on College avenue about 10:55 last night, according to a police report. The cars drove onto the avenue from N. and S. Appleton street and were turning to go west when the collision occurred.

Appleton Pastor Resigns Position
Rev. L. O. Bodie to Succeed Rev. G. H. Bauerlein at Tabernacle

The Rev. George H. Bauerlein, pastor of the New Appleton tabernacle for the last seven years, has resigned the position and will be succeeded by the Rev. Lowell O. Bodie, who will be installed next Sunday morning by the Rev. J. A. Peterson, superintendent of the Northwest district of the Christian and Missionary Alliance.

At the invitation of the Rev. Mr. Bauerlein, the alliance, a missionary movement of 50 years' growth, made a survey of the Appleton work, and at a meeting of the congregation last week it was voted to join the movement. The alliance has over 500 missionaries in 20 different fields, and carries on extensive evangelistic efforts in the home.

The Rev. Mr. Bodie has had 20 years of successful ministry, beginning as a young minister in Boone, Iowa. After six years there he served successively in Sioux City, Iowa, and Minneapolis. A new tabernacle was built in each of these cities while he was pastor there. While in Minneapolis he was the faithful Bible for five years in the St. Paul Bible institute. He spent the last two years doing evangelistic work in the United States and Canada.

A farewell service in honor of the Rev. Mr. Bauerlein was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Goodrick, 721 N. Appleton street. About 60 persons were present.

SCHIERLAND FUNERAL
Funeral services for Mrs. Louis Schierland, 93, Oshkosh, who died Monday morning in Appleton, were held yesterday afternoon at Margaret's funeral home in Oshkosh and at Christ Lutheran church in that city with the Rev. George Weng in charge. Burial was in Riverside cemetery at Oshkosh.

Mrs. Schierland was born in Germany in 1846 and came to the United States in 1871, settling in the town of Wolf River and later moving to Oshkosh.

Bearers at yesterday's services were Robert Piltan, Herman Linde, Albert Naffin, Fred Radatz, Otto McElen, and William Werner.

BIRTHS
Twin daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Leitman, 218 E. McKinley street, yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Fritsch, route 1, Menasha, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Says Solution of Jewish Problem Is In National Home

I. A. Abroahams, Green Bay, Addresses Kiwanis Club on Zionism

I. A. Abroahams, a Green Bay business man and student of Zionism, told members of the Appleton Kiwanis club yesterday noon at the Conway hotel that dictators "have no reason for persecution of the Jews, only excuses" and that he believes the Jewish problem will exist as long as Jews and Gentiles live in the same country, in the same communities.

In a frank discussion of the matter, the Green Bay man declared that after years of studying and observing he believes "the hatred of Jews by the Christians will exist forever," but that it "is not really a Jewish problem, it is a Gentile problem."

"The Jew has no part in it except by his presence," Abroahams said. "If there were no Jews in the Gentile world, there would be no Jewish problem."

I know there are millions of Gentiles who would not harm any human being, but we are concerned with the masses and they are as yet not civilized enough."

He asked his listeners if they believed that the 500,000 Jews among Germany's 65 million people "could have controlled the country" and asserted that "if any demagog could overthrow their businesses and homes overnight, they could not have been so strong."

"The Jew in Europe," he said, "is the poorest race in Europe."

He continued, "The only hope for the Jew is to become once again what he was in the past. He must recreate a national home."

Home In Palestine
Abroahams described international events leading up to the Versailles treaty provision which gave England a mandate over Palestine for the express purpose of setting up a Jewish home, told of the country's arid wastelands and dreary appearance after years of neglect, and of the extraordinary developments which have been instituted since the general re-settlement by Jews.

There are today 500,000 Jews in Palestine, Abroahams related, and they have irrigated desert land, reclaimed swamps, rid the country of disease, and built a modern world of power plants, telephone lines, industry, teaming agriculture, and comfortable housing.

Dislike of the Jews is "merely a manifestation of an inner disease," Abroahams said. "It has to do with the fact that civilization has not developed enough to admit that all people have the same right. The process of civilization is so slow that it would take millions of years to change this attitude."

The Jew in every country "is what that country has made him," Abroahams said. "If it is said that Jews in America, France, and England are superior to those elsewhere—which really is not so—it is because they have had more opportunities in those countries. If those in Poland are said to be inferior, it is because of restrictions placed on them."

Milwaukee Man Will Manage Bakery Here
H. M. Jaeger of Milwaukee has purchased a half-interest in the Service Bakery at 823 W. College avenue, William Laux, Jr., owner, said today.

Jaeger will be general manager of the bakery and Laux will move to Peoria, Ill., where he has another plant.

The Jaeger family will move to Appleton about Oct. 20 and will reside at 1112 W. Prospect avenue.

Doctors Discuss High School Examinations
Examinations for Appleton high school students this year were discussed at a meeting of the Appleton Medical society Tuesday night at St. Elizabeth hospital. The program will be outlined at the next meeting of the society. Officers of the group are Dr. E. F. McGrath, president; Dr. W. J. Frawley, vice president; and Dr. Stephan Konz, secretary.

Change in Trades Division Mapped At Board Meeting
Heilig Explains Personality Clinic at Vocational School

The reorganization of the curriculum in the trades and industry division of the day school was outlined by Herb Heilig, director, at a meeting of the Appleton Vocational school board this noon.

The persistent shift in class personnel from students who needed drilling in the fundamentals 15 years ago to high school graduates in the last few years made the change necessary, Heilig said.

About 83 per cent of the students in the trades and industry division last year were high school graduates, he said.

The vocational school now is offering opportunities for majors in mechanical and architectural drawing and minors in mathematics and the need for remedial work in the fundamentals has almost disappeared.

Heilig told the board that the personality quotient of vocational students is fast becoming more important than the outmoded intelligence quotient and the school is attempting to meet that demand by putting the students through a personality clinic for rating when they enroll.

A. C. Meating is in charge of the subject which is new in the trades and industry division. Personal appearance, attitude, posture, personal habits and other points are becoming more important when students go into business and industry to seek jobs, he told the board.

"Pupils with identical deficiencies in personality are grouped into 'natural' and 'artificial' at the vocational school and are instructed to remind each other to correct themselves," Heilig said.

Heilig also gave a report on the handling of non-resident adult students and R. J. Mahony reported on the new accounting procedure recently installed in the business offices of the school.

Lights on Avenue To be Turned Out For Torch Parade

Annual College Homecoming March Will be Staged Friday Night

A temporary black-out on College avenue at about 8:45 Friday night will have no more alarming significance than that the annual Lawrence college torchlight parade is beginning its trek down the avenue. To help make the parade more picturesque, the city has agreed to turn out the lights while parade-clad paraders move down the street.

From the river bank back of Ormsby hall, where a homecoming pep meeting will be held earlier in the evening, the parade will move up S. Drew street to E. College avenue, where it will proceed west to Superior street. At Superior street it will turn south to Lawrence street, where the torches will be thrown in a bonfire.

Then the paraders will move east to Appleton street, north on Appleton street to Washington street, east on Washington to Oneida, and then into the Appleton theater, where there will be cheers and a number of two by the band. The students will be permitted to remain free of charge to see the picture.

Floate Parade
The float parade at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, another part of the Lawrence weekend homecoming program, will proceed down College avenue from the campus to S. Memorial drive. There the parade will turn south for one block, proceed for two blocks east on W. Lawrence street, and then turn back to College avenue, ending at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

At the head of the parade will be a police escort and a car driven by Robert Leverenz, Sheboygan, homecoming chairman. In the car will be Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Dean John Mills and Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools.

Leading the floats will be last year's winners, Delta Gamma sorority and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Next in line, in the order named, will be Alpha Delta Pi sorority's entry, Beta Theta Pi, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Alpha, Kappa Delta, Phi Delta Theta, Phi Gamma, Phi Kappa Tau and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The floats will use as their theme the Lawrence - Carleton homecoming football game which will be played at 2:15 Saturday afternoon at Whiting field.

It Is Said--
That as far as employees of the county courthouse are concerned Thanksgiving day will be observed on Thursday, Nov. 30. Senator Mike Mack, chairman of the county board said that the observance will be made in accordance to the announcement of Governor Heil who designated the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving day.

The Appleton Kiwanis club has a nice new mirror in which to admire itself.

The club competed in a district Kiwanis songfest at Oshkosh Tuesday night and was awarded the prize for being the "best looking" outfit there. The mirror was the prize.

That workers excavating for the new Lieber Lumber company office building on W. Franklin street, directly south of the Chicago and North Western Freight depot, have found four graves. Outlines of the graves are clearly visible about four feet from the top of the excavation, and there are sections of rotted wood. The outlines indicate that the wood may be from the rough boxes and that the coffins may have been removed when the cemetery, which formerly was situated in that area, was changed to a new site.

That forgetfulness and not theft was the cause of trouble for Abe Schlomovitz, Milwaukee, who reported the theft of dresses and blouses from his parked car on E. Washington street Tuesday. Schlomovitz had taken his case which contained the articles and placed them outside of the building at which he was making a call. When he returned to the car, he had forgotten he had taken out the case, and reported it stolen. The case was recovered.

DRIVE CHAIRMAN
John Trautmann, above, was named chairman for the Appleton division, Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association seal sale which opens Thanksgiving at a meeting last night of directors of the division. Plans for the drive were made at the session. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Miss Morgan Is WATA President
Succeeds Mrs. R. J. White As Head of Appleton Division

Miss Carrie Morgan was named president of the Appleton division, Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, at a meeting of the directors last night in the Post-Crescent building. She succeeds Mrs. R. J. White who has moved to California.

John Trautmann was named chairman for the annual seal sale which will open on Thanksgiving day. In the past the president acted in the capacity of sale chairman, but directors decided to separate the two offices. Through combination of the Outagamie County Health association and the Appleton division of the W.A.T.A., more than a year ago, only one seal will be sold this year. This same plan was followed last year. The seals will be placed in the mails Thanksgiving day.

Headquarters for the division will be set up in the near future. Funds realized from the annual sale of seals will be used for W.A.T.A. work in Appleton and Outagamie county.

Big Homecoming Mapped This Year
Cheerleaders in Charge of Arrangements for High School Event, Oct. 28

A bigger homecoming than last year is the promise of Armin Scheurle, head cheerleader and chairman, to students of Appleton High school. Alumni will be welcomed back Saturday, Oct. 28, when the Terrors will play the East Green Bay high school squad at Whiting field.

The WORLD of STAMPS

The advance illustration for the stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of the admittance to the Union of four states, has been released by U. S. postal authorities. A three-center, the stamp will honor the admission of Washington, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota in 1889. The date and place of first day sale will be announced later.

Thriving Philately
How many persons realize just what a big business stamp collecting is? It is so big that there are stamp exchanges in New York and Cleveland, operated along the line of Wall street brokerage houses. The exchanges cater to the needs of 5,000,000 U. S. collectors.

In the "Wall street" of the stamp trade (Nassau street, New York), there is a board carrying the names of the more valuable stamps and current quotations. The board looks precisely like the ones used to record stock figures.

The large exchanges import stamps from all over the world—by the bale. They come, not singly, nor even in sheets, but in huge sacks. One New York stamp wholesale house has an arrangement whereby it gets the envelopes from every bank in the city. Girls tear off the stamps assort them, and they go eventually to albums all over the world.

Artistic Hungary
A set of five charmingly lithographed stamps has been issued by Hungary to commemorate Protestant leaders in its history.

Although the majority of Hungarians are Catholic, about one-quarter cling to the Calvinist faith. Each year the Calvinists celebrate October 31 as a national holiday. This year a whole week—from October 25 to November 2—is being set aside for Protestant celebration. As far as can be learned, the stamps, issued for the occasion, are the first of their kind ever printed. Each stamp bears a surcharge of 50 per cent its value. This money will be used to erect an International Protestant Institute.

The 6 filler bears the name and favorite text of two pioneer missionaries, Matyas Biro of Deva, called the "Hungarian Luther," and Peter Melius Juhasz, considered the "Hungarian Calvin."

Turmoil in Europe Should Spur Work on 'Home Front'

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Managers of the community mobilization for human needs—which is the annual campaign on behalf of community chests in some 500 localities—fear that turmoil abroad will distract attention this year from their important efforts at home.

But instead of proving a distraction the news from Europe should be exactly the opposite.

Naturally the American people are deeply absorbed in the European situation and its effects upon us. They are eagerly reading and listening to an unrecorded volume of discussion. I find people, wherever I go, and no matter in what occupation, talking with real knowledge and understanding about Europe and our neutrality problem. The letters which come in show information and thought. And the Washington taxicab driver has become an oracle who could put up a good argument with any United States senator.

Never have our people made such an effort to understand foreign affairs. The result is that we are much wiser than we were in the previous war, when none of us knew the score.

Out of this comes a sense of values which we never standing so clearly now, lead us to what President Roosevelt, in his address the other night, called the home front. We know now that it is more to the point to save democracy here at home than it is to try to impress it on peoples in Europe.

So that many here expect shortly to see a resurgence of interest in domestic affairs which will be backed by greater determination than ever to make democracy secure in America. And more than that, to make the American brand of democracy something which will stand as one of the proudest chapters in the history of man.

This war has served to drive home to all of us the conviction that the state should exist for human beings, not human beings for the state. Society and the state grow out of human beings, and when human beings decay, when their morale is wrecked, when they cannot find the means of livelihood, when they are in desperate want, to dictators they turn as did the oppressed and neglected Russian peasants and the frantic, helpless German people.

The family, Mr. Roosevelt said, is the basis of society as we know it, and it must be preserved as an institution if democracy is to be perpetuated. Community chests, with their special responsibility to bring cheer and comfort to individuals and families made desolate by want and poverty, constitute our home front. This Mr. Roosevelt said, must be preserved at all hazards.

Must Be Intent On Things Closest To Home

This national campaign for community chest funds, sponsored by 36 national social agencies, is the Karoli, appears on the 10 filler stamp, and Hungary's pioneer translator of hymns in the early 17th century, Albert Molnar, appears on the 20 filler stamp.

The early Prince Gabor Bethlen, who expanded Hungarian influence in world affairs three centuries ago, appears on horseback on the 32 filler stamp. Zuzsanna Loranffy, a socially-conscious wife of a prince three centuries ago, is the woman on the 40 filler stamp. She is the symbol of Ladies Aid organizations of Hungary. Calvinist churches even in the United States.

Miss Margaret Koehn Elected Prefect of Little Chute Sodality

Little Chute — Miss Margaret Koehn was elected prefect of Our Lady sodality of St. John church at a meeting held Tuesday evening at the school hall. She will succeed Miss Helen Wildenberg, who resigned. Other officers elected are Miss Elizabeth Hammen as secretary and Miss Doris Peeters, treasurer. About forty-five members were present at the meeting. After the business meeting buncos was played and a lunch was served.

A fire prevention week program sponsored by the local firemen was held at the St. John school auditorium Wednesday afternoon and evening. The afternoon program was attended by approximately 800 children, and about 200 adults witnessed the evening demonstrations. Demonstrations of the causes of fire such as electrical wiring hazards, gas explosions, overloaded electric circuits and many others were given by Herman Liettenberger, fire chief of Kiel. Literature on fire prevention had been distributed all children of the local schools the week previous. Work has been completed on the re-painting of the local fire truck.

Safety Pictures Will Be Shown at Meetings

Safety motion pictures will be shown at a series of three meetings in Outagamie county next week, according to Henry J. Van Straten, county superintendent of schools. The meetings are made possible through the cooperation of the Outagamie County Safety council and the county traffic officers. The first meeting will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at Fraser's hall, Nichols. The second will be held at the same hour Thursday evening at Diem's hall, town of Maine, and on Friday evening at the Bear Creek High school.

Schuh formerly was Miss Stella Driessen of this village. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook and children have returned to their home in Green Bay after a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester J. Vandenberg, Wilson street.

Mrs. Joseph Kobussen is confined to her home on account of illness. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gresenz of New London, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lamers and daughter Joyce of Stoughton and Mr. and Mrs. Wright Smith of Appleton attended the Wonders - Lamers wedding here Tuesday.

Social Problems Offer Challenge, PTA Leader Says

Parents, Teachers Must Think of Children,
District Parley Told

Neenah — No new curriculum courses were added and no new holidays were specified by the legislature for the first time in years. Miss Emma Brookmire, field secretary of the Wisconsin Parent Teacher Congress reported at the Sixth District conference Wednesday in First Methodist Episcopal church, at the same time that she urged discouragement of legislative curriculum.

"Let us live our democratic ideals and not allow them to be legislated. Let us teach American traditions in such a way that they will be indelible on the thinking of our children. The most questionable people would be the first to rise to salutes or allegiances if such were legislated as compulsory."

"I cannot emphasize too strongly however the strategic challenge that is ours in solving the social problems of today. There have been many economic changes in our country, not because of the depression although they may have been accentuated by it. Unemployment has been caused just as much by replacement of man power with machine power and the older population that brings the problems of old age pensions have been caused just as much by longer life spans and by fewer children."

Cooperation Needed
"We haven't had much change in our tax structure in the last several years but we will have to sit down and think about it, not in a competitive manner but in a co-operative manner for the solution of common tax problems. As a parent and teacher organization, we are speaking for the children and we are the only ones who think for them and their welfare. There must be a financial structure to make the things we want for our children possible and it must be done economically."

"I am not a feminist but I believe that as women we have failed in exerting our influence. We must make parents conscious of the civic and economic needs so that intelligent and intelligible requests may be made of our representatives who really want the pulse of their constituents. We must not be competitors for funds but a cooperating force, militant for those fields which we believe must be served."

Among the 160 bills introduced during the session affecting schools and teachers, Miss Brookmire mentioned legislation of transportation for high school students by school boards, tuition changes so that school districts not supporting high schools may be charged for materials, instruction, upkeep of buildings; safety measures for school busses, clarification of the compulsory attendance law and amendments involving special cases.

Galilean to Talk At Neenah Church

Shepherd Also Slated to Speak at Menasha
High School

Neenah — Stephen A. Haboush, a native Galilean shepherd, will speak at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Oct. 15, at the Trinity Lutheran church. His topic will be "Under Galilean Skies."

Haboush will present a musical travesty, "On Sacred Soil," at the Menasha High School auditorium at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, Oct. 18, under the auspices of the Trinity League of the Twin Cities.

The shepherd, who was born in Galilee, is the author of the book, "My Shepherd Life in Galilee," and in his talks, he interprets the scriptures in the light of the places and people, and his experience as a shepherd in Galilee, enables him to explain and apply both the surface and deeper meanings of the shepherd literature of the Bible.

In the travelogue, assisted by Mrs. Haboush, he will give the shepherd's call to his sheep, show the ancient cities, covered streets, Solomon's quarry and stables, models of the temples from the time of Solomon to the present, the temple area, the mosque of Omar.

Foresters Will Attend Valley Meeting Sunday

Menasha — Members of the Menasha court of the Catholic Order of Foresters will attend the semi-annual meeting of Fox river valley courts at Fond du Lac Sunday. The meeting will start at 10:30 Sunday morning.

Officers of the court were installed Tuesday by C. J. Oberwieser. Awards in cards following the business session went to Lawrence Stein, Anton Pozolinski, V. M. Landgraf and Charles Grade.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and display advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street, and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for display advertising should be placed by telephone 543 in Appleton, and the cost of the telephone call will be rebated. The Twin Cities office closes at 7 o'clock in the evening.

AS DELEGATES REGISTERED FOR DISTRICT PTA MEETING

Neenah — Neenah Parent Teacher association members were busy Wednesday morning registering delegates as they arrived from West Bend, Waupun, Sheboygan, Oshkosh, Kaukauna, Fond du Lac, and Appleton, for the 1-day conference of the Sixth District Parent and Teacher association. First Methodist church, in the above picture, part of the Appleton delegation is waiting to be registered. Reading from left to right in the above picture are Mrs. Joseph Post, Edison PTA, Appleton, Mrs. J. Trautman, Roosevelt PTA, Appleton, Mrs. E. C. Junge, Roosevelt PTA, Appleton and Mrs. F. W. Schneider, Roosevelt PTA, Appleton. Mrs. Henry Schultz, Mrs. Robert Schultz, and Mrs. George Hrubecy, all of the Neenah Roosevelt PTA. Mrs. Robert Schultz was general chairman of the convention. High School Students Score Lack of Enforced Discipline In Panel Discussion for PTA

Neenah — Lack of enforced discipline both in the home and school, lack of vocational guidance among freshmen—and sophomores and lack of respect for school property were among the charges made by five Neenah High school students against the home, school and student body in a panel discussion on "Youth Discovers the Parent and Teacher," which climaxed the Sixth District Parent Teacher Congress session in First Methodist church Wednesday afternoon. The participants were Rose Dowling, Mary Koch, Roy Matzdorf, James Webb and Robert Johnson.

The student panel highlighted the afternoon sessions, providing the 200 delegates with information as well as amusement. The students charged that debates in school activity and Parent Teacher associations were not exciting enough for both parents and teachers to attend, hence the attendance was dwarfed in comparison with attendance at football and basketball games.

The panel discussion was based on a survey made among the Neenah High school students on school and home problems. Of the students, 121 reported a real interest in going to school to learn while 12 said they were studying because they were required to go to school. Six were undecided. Eighty-three believed teachers bring subjects up to date and show how the subjects can be used in later life but 38 did not. Nineteen students were undecided. Seventy-eight students said there was not enough time for extra-curricular activities while 64 believed there was time. Eighty-two students stated teachers expect too much home work, 52 did not. Eighty-four students agreed on enough social activities but 52 said there was not enough.

Divided Opinions
About 115 students declared that discipline was not too strict in the school, 28 said it was. An equal division on the question "do you believe there is enough vocational guidance in the school?" was reported, 71 on each side. Approximately 109 students said they were free to express own opinions at home, 26 said not and 83 said they felt free to express opinions at school while 30 said not.

In home problem questions, 102 students said that they did not believe they should be allowed to go to several movies during the week, 42 said yes. Only 8 students said their parents select their high school subjects.

Eighty-four students said they spend most of their evenings at home, 37 said no; 67 received assistance from parents, 34 not; 37 receive allowances, 75 do not and 35 earn their allowance and 42 do not.

Harold Whinfield, Sheboygan, answered for the parents as the panel discussion closed and Miss Emma Brookmire for the teachers.

Miss Armela Trester, kindergarten supervisor, Sheboygan, discussed developing study groups and stimulating programs during the afternoon.

Speaks at Luncheon
Miss Margaret Roberts, supervisor in Fond du Lac schools, was luncheon speaker at noon presenting six specific points on how the parent can assist the teacher. They were getting acquainted personally with the teacher, preferably before school starts, learning how she dresses, acts, what makes her a human being; what philosophy of education the school stands for and how the teacher can interpret it; learning what her philosophy of life is, what her social reactions are, what she is trying to do, and what her equipment needs are and if the board of education supplies those needs. "If you have a Parent Teacher association that has lectures after which its members go home and do nothing, you might as well disband the association," she pointed out.

Announcement of the state convention at Fond du Lac April 23, 24 and 25, 1940 for which H. F. Schnell, sixth district president, will be program chairman, was made. Parents Teacher week is to be observed Oct. 15 to 21, a sixth district luncheon at the state convention at which officers will be named and a constitution adopted, and a Parents Teacher association luncheon Friday noon during the Wisconsin Education Convention Nov. 2 and 3 were among the other announcements made.

Mrs. H. P. Stoll, state president, told the group prior to the closing of the conference that at the national convention a resolution had been passed that as parents and teachers, living in accordance with the principles of democracy, every organization should ask the president and congress to keep United States out of war and should study the causes of war and the methods by which peace may be secured. Mrs. Stoll, speaking at the luncheon session on the work of the sixth district, emphasized child welfare and increased active membership.

Mark Catlin, Jr., Describes Work Of Legislature

Appleton Assemblyman
Speaks at Menasha
Rotary Session

Menasha — Achievements of the 1939 state legislature were outlined by Mark Catlin, Jr., Appleton, assemblyman from the Outagamie county, first district in a talk to members of the Menasha Rotary club at the Wednesday noon luncheon meeting of the club at Hotel Menasha.

Reorganization and coordination of various governmental agencies was listed as one of the accomplishments of the legislature. The welfare department was created to coordinate all public assistance institutions such as child welfare, mental hygiene and other departments carried on separately before. The motor vehicle department, was created to handle all details pertaining to automobile registrations and licenses.

The department of taxation was created to coordinate the tax collecting agencies. The plan also calls for replacement of the 71 county tax appeals boards. The department of securities, a self-supporting agency, was created to eliminate many of the troubles which arose under the old public service commission. The securities department developed the new securities law.

Important Amendments
Three important constitutional amendments were instituted during the session of the legislature. One was designed to authorize installation of a new tax-eating, spending commission to be appointed by the governor to study the future of the Wisconsin development authority, the agriculture authority, the farm credit administration and the department of commerce," Catlin said.

Economy also was instilled in departments of government and the various units learned that they had no free hand in hiring employees or in purchases but were responsible to the administration, he stated. Persistent checking by Governor Julius Heil and other officials and creation of the research bureau to check on departments resulted in the economies, Catlin said. The bureau is to report to the 1941 legislature.

Accomplishments also were made during the 1939 session in labor legislation and in the school and education field the club was told. The latter were referred to as "outstanding work compared to the work of past legislatures" and Catlin pointed out economies in school aid made possible by the legislature.

In the labor field the Wisconsin employment relations board was created and a labor bill, introduced by the Outagamie county assemblyman, was passed.

Explains Length
Two reasons were advanced by the assemblyman for the length of the 1939 session. In the first place, the assembly was unable to secure the cooperation of minority groups in the senate on a tax bill. Catlin maintained. In the second place, the 1939 legislature returned to the democratic form of rule. There was no gag rule and minority groups had unlimited opportunity to express themselves in debate.

The main problem facing the legislature is raising money, the assemblyman stated. He said the assembly had offered three tax bills but the senate had failed to co-operate. Committees are working on the differences and a tax measure probably will be passed at a short special session.

Neenah — Eight players have reached the quarter-final round of the intramural horseshoe tournament for boys at Menasha High school.

Pairings for the round are Popp versus Kaczmarek, Stierman versus R. Gavinski, Steffens versus J. Hoffman, and Clark versus Swamp. In the upper bracket Popp scored an 11 to 6 victory over Novakofski and Kaczmarek won from R. Chadek by an 11 to 1 score. Stierman defeated D. Grode 11 to 6 and Gavinski won on a forfeit from Nalewaj.

Work of Visiting Nurses Outlined For Association

Organization Serves 10
Per Cent of Neenah,
Menasha Population

Neenah — Ten per cent of the population of Neenah and Menasha was serviced by the Visiting Nurse association of Neenah and Menasha, it was reported at the annual association meeting in the Twin City Y. W. C. A. Wednesday as Miss Lydia Bourassa, staff supervisor, presented her yearly report on the activities of the four nurses who are Miss Alice Tollefson, Miss Dorothy Dunham, Mrs. Angeline Patton and Miss Bourassa. About 8,340 calls were made.

Stressing the importance of first family calls, Miss Bourassa outlined the gradual growth of service by the association staff. Of the 8,340 calls, 42.17 percent were medical and surgical, 9.83 were communicable diseases, an increase over last year due to the influenza epidemic last winter which brought 70 new cases into the service circle of the VNA during the first eight days of March. Maternity cases were 40 per cent of the total number. Average daily calls were about 8 per cent. In division of age groups in the calls, 66 per cent of the calls were adult, 20 per cent for children under one year of age, 6 per cent for that group between six and 16 years.

In the distribution of time chart, Miss Bourassa showed the group that the nurses spend 77 per cent of their time in the field. About 61 per cent of the cases were not payment cases, 3 per cent were full payment and 15 per cent part payment.

Lands Aid Group
Miss Bourassa made special tribute to the Twin City Emergency society to which the VNA referred 122 cases last year. In suggesting goals for the future, the staff supervisor stated that she hoped some day for a Visiting Nurse center where its clinics, its educational programs and its offices might be under one roof. She also announced that she would speak on public health nursing and the VNA service at the Oct. 23 meeting of the Winnebago County Medical society auxiliary.

Mrs. Ernest Mahler presented the report of the finance committee and Mrs. Donald Shepard reported on the auxiliary which during the last year made over 3,600 surgical dressings as well as aprons and other necessary equipment for the service. The auxiliary cleared $82 at the food concession booth during the home show and $250 from a showing and sale of clothes. The auxiliary purchased among many other necessary pieces of equipment for the service, a blood testing machine and two stethoscopes. The auxiliary has a bank balance of $104.50.

Submit Reports
Mrs. John Sensenbrenner's report of the clerical committee showed 154 hours of work on records and reports of the service. Mrs. Kimberly Stuart reported on publicity.

Ten health centers were held during the year with 119 new cases. Mrs. Irwin Pearson stated in the report of the public relations committee. She explained the special May 1 health day program which, it is hoped, will be an annual affair. The health centers cost was $153.75.

Mrs. K. B. Mory, in the dental committee report, stated that 35 dental clinics were held in Neenah and 43 in Menasha with a total of 446 appointments. About 100 cases were new. The cost for the year was $689.

L. Kimberly, in presenting the treasurer's report, listed the cash balance at the end of the fiscal year at $148.56. The Visiting Nurse association endowment account whose trustees are Ernest Mahler, Carleton R. Smith and S. N. Pickard, shows a total investment account of $9,304.37. $3,500 of which is invested in United States treasury bonds. The endowment fund is made of memorial contributions specifically for the fund, which is being raised for perpetual nursing service in the Twin Cities.

Barlow Will Address Neenah Rotary Club

Neenah — Elmer E. Barlow, legal advisor to Governor Julius P. Heil and who is scheduled to address the Neenah Rotary club at a meeting this noon at the Valley Inn, has been named commissioner of the new state tax department. He is an Arcadia attorney. Barlow was named by the governor to head the reorganized department and the senate confirmed the appointment.

William Crosland, Rotary governor, will be the speaker at the noon meeting Thursday, Oct. 19.

Swine Breeders Will Sponsor Sale Oct. 21

Neenah — The Winnebago County Swine Breeders association's board sale, which has drawn considerable attention throughout the nation, will be Saturday, Oct. 21, at the Winnebago sales pavilion, R. C. Heffernan, county agricultural agent, reported today.

One of the more than 17 consignors to the sale is Lester Jorgenson, route 3, Neenah, who will consign Hampshire pigs.

It Is Said--
That students of the Menasha Junior and Senior High schools and Vocational school had an unscheduled fire drill the other morning. Touch football was in progress in one of the physical education classes in the gymnasium and a pass went wild. The ball hit one of the alarm boxes set in the wall, broke the glass, set off the alarm and sent the students streaming outdoors.

Hull Alfalfa, Clover In Winnebago County

Menasha — Clover and alfalfa hulling is progressing in Winnebago county with some excellent yields and some very poor yields reported, according to R. C. Heffernan, Winnebago county agricultural agent.

Yields of four bushels an acre of alfalfa seed have been reported with other yields as low as one bushel an acre. Clover yields seem to be uniformly good all over the county.

Two Autos Involved In Traffic Accident

Menasha — An automobile driven by George R. Goodrich, 226 E. Lawrence street, Appleton, was damaged in a collision with a car driven by Joe Buttram, 112 Main street, Menasha, Wednesday, according to Police Chief Alex Slomski.

The accident occurred when both cars were being driven west on Main street. The left front fender and running board of the Goodrich car were damaged while the Buttram car was not damaged.

Dr. Richard Jensen Addresses Nicolet School PTA Tonight

Menasha — Continuing its program theme, "Building for Well-Balanced Lives," the Nicolet school Parent Teacher association will discuss the theme "Through Health" at its 7:30 Tuesday evening meeting. Dr. Richard A. Jensen will be guest speaker and cards will be played during the social hour.

"Building for Well-Balanced Lives through Well-Balanced Schools" will be the November meeting topic of a unit being studied by the children. The youngsters had their pictures taken, toured the farm and did farm work.

As a culmination of the unit, the pupils will present a program Oct. 24. The program will be given for McKinley school pupils Tuesday morning, at 7 o'clock in the evening for the parents, and on the following day, the program will be staged for Neenah primary teachers.

The pupils have decorated the school room to correspond with the farm unit study and have made booklets on the work.

Dr. Henry Schultz New Vice President Of Dental Society

Menasha — Miss Bette Harold, secretary at the office of the Menasha School of Vocational and Adult education, is attending a secretary's conference today at Fond du Lac.

BRICK Homes are BETTER Homes

DUNBRIK are economical to buy because of their process of manufacture — 2,000 per hour, and THEY ARE MADE RIGHT HERE IN OUTAGAMIE COUNTY!

DUNBRIK are economical to use because they are positively uniform in size — they are preferred by bricklayers because they are much faster and easier to lay with no warped "cripples" as in ordinary brick.

DUNBRIK are stronger and last much longer because they are made of cement and stone — the finest building materials known to man, and which is far superior to clay.

DUNBRIK can be furnished in any color, finish or texture to suit your taste. In other words, you have almost a hundred different colors and patterns to choose from.

NOW you can afford to build with brick. It costs no more than frame construction, and naturally, DUNBRIK has a much longer life, lower maintenance cost and much better appearance.

We also manufacture other building units for better homes at lower cost. ASK TO SEE NEWER AND BETTER HOMES BEING BUILT.

Neenah Gridders Show Pep in Drill For St. Mary Tilt

Christoph Divides Squad Into Two Units for Scrimmage

Neenah — Coach George Christoph's Neenah high school grid squad was imbued with more pep and fight during its scrimmage practice Wednesday afternoon in Menasha than has been apparent since the opening game of the season.

Coach Christoph divided his squad into two units, A and B teams and reserves for both. The A team spotted the B's six points but they lost little time in dead-end the score, pushing over a touchdown in the first quarter. The B team made a goal line stand, but the A squad backs sifted through. The Rocket Mentor will select his starting line-up on the St. Mary tilt on the basis of performance in the scrimmage, and there will be drastic changes in the starting cast.

The reserves for the A squad were Luka, Lewandowski, Douglas, Kramer, R. Redlin, Hyland, Schram, Mitchell, Speidel and Asmus, while the B squad reserves were Luebbeck, Olson, Schmidt, Krueger, Burstein, Olson, Winkelman, Anderson, Babbitts, Zimmerman, Buterfield, Weitz, Reimer and Hess.

Saturday's conflict will be the ninth between the two neighboring schools. Starting in 1931, Neenah has recorded six victories and St. Mary two.

County Judge to Hear Arguments on Pulaski Street Case Tomorrow

Neenah — Action to determine the necessity for the opening of Pulaski street will come before County Judge D. E. McDonald at 10 o'clock Friday morning in court at Oshkosh. The city of Menasha has started condemnation proceedings against Mrs. George Halloran to secure property necessary for the opening of Pulaski street.

At the Sept. 5 meeting of the Menasha council, the aldermen instructed Edward C. McKenzie, city attorney, to proceed with the condemnation proceedings which had been discussed at previous meetings. Mrs. Halloran appeared at the Sept. 5 meeting and suggested $500 as a fair price for the property while the council committee had suggested $200.

If the court upholds the necessity of the case, a jury of three appraisers will be named and they will conduct a hearing and take testimony before finally setting a price.

Crockett, director of vocational and adult education.

The next Friday and Saturday, representatives are expected from Oshkosh, Neenah, Appleton, Kimberly, Kaukauna, Manitowish, Two Rivers, Green Bay, Marinette, Fond du Lac and other places.

Editor Tells Club About Propaganda

Can't Escape It and Continue Reading, Business Women Told

Menasha — Newspapers are more concerned with propaganda that is disseminated from within than from abroad, because the first is apt to be swallowed whole, while the second, the public is naturally suspicious declared John R. Riedl, managing editor of the Appleton Post-Crescent, at the Wednesday evening meeting of the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club in Hotel Menasha.

"Every line that you read, every billboard, every advertisement, every book, is propaganda and America needs no lessons from foreign countries in subtleties of propaganda. Propaganda is no more than selling an idea. However, when you speak of censorship, that is quite a different thing. People are prone to misunderstand the two. Censorship is keeping you from being informed.

"In America, we have no censorship for with freedom of speech and freedom of the press, we are able to find out the facts and speak about them. It is only when censorship is applied that one cannot find out.

Censorship as applied in England requires reporters to submit their copy to a censorship bureau and those things are deleted which the country believes might benefit the enemy. The censorship applied in Italy and Germany permits reporters to write what they wish, but if their stories do not please the governments, the correspondents may be expelled. This is the more dangerous censorship because the reporter, trying to win favor with the government of the country in which he is, is inclined to color his stories.

"If you want to keep away from propaganda, you would have to discontinue reading magazines, books; in short, you would have to quit reading."

During the business session of the club, Miss Peg Dunning, Miss Della Radtack and Mrs. Laura Uley were named as a revisions and amendment committee which is to revise the by-laws and present amendments which are necessary.

Invitations from the Sheboygan club to attend the fifteenth birthday anniversary party Saturday evening at the Milwaukee club's annual state night at the Pfister Hotel Nov. 4 were read.

Mrs. Maude Rodgers, book club chairman, reported that the first meeting will be held Wednesday evening, Oct. 18, with Miss Stella Borenz, Miss Nell Webster will review Anderson's "Masque of Kings." Miss Clara Bloom will review "Soaring Wings" at the November meeting. Miss Alice Kerwin will review "Heads and Tails" at the January meeting. Miss Mae Hart will review "Wickford Point" at the February session. A play will be read in March and Margaret McMahon will review a fiction book in April. Miss McMahon, Miss Alice Kerwin and Mrs. Rodgers are members of the book club committee.

Neenah Students Write High Tests

Rate Well Above State Median in Achievement Examinations

Neenah — Neenah High school students who took the state achievement tests in American history and English last spring received grades well above the median for the state, according to the results received today by Principal J. H. Holzman.

In the history test, the median grade for all students in Wisconsin who took the examinations was 70 out of a possible 185, while the median for Neenah High school students was 86. Neenah High school boys did better than the girls, the results showed, for the median for the boys was 94 and 89 for the girls.

Only twelfth grade students took the English tests, and the median for Wisconsin was 90.7, while it was 93 for Neenah High school seniors. Neenah seniors, however, who were taking English subjects scored a median of 105, while the seniors not taking the course had a median of 88. The highest possible score was 150 for the English tests.

Little Chute in 9 to 0 Victory Over Fond du Lac

Dutchmen Get Placekick In First Period, Touch- down in Third

LITTLE CHUTE—The Flying Dutchmen grid squad traveled to Fond du Lac last night and copped a 9 to 0 victory. It was the Dutchmen's third victory in a row after losing three straight and gave them a .500 rating.

In last night's encounter, the Dutchmen displayed some brilliant teamwork smashing the opponents' thrusts at every turn. On offense they clicked on plunges and end runs although the aerial threat didn't pan out so good.

The Dutchmen threatened in the initial period by working the ball to their opponents' 20 after recovering a fumble. Three passes were incomplete with Fondy taking the ball as the period ended.

The second period had the Dutchmen again knocking at their opponents' door, after Red Boots had lined a 30 yard pass to Edting, putting the ball on the 25. Fond du Lac's defense stiffened and Al Boots, who played a great game, stepped back to the 35 yard line and booted a perfect field goal with Red Boots holding the ball. It gave the Dutchmen a 3 to 0 lead as the quarter ended.

Fond du Lac chose to receive at the opening of the third period with Wagback fumbling the kick off on his own 30. Marty Wyngaard, on the alert, fell on the pigskin to give the Dutchmen the ball on the 21 yard line. A pass, Al Boots to Jerome Helf, was good placing the ball on the 13. Al Boots picked up first down on two plunges to place the ball on the 2-yard line. With the entire Fondy line bunching to hold Red Boots, Ed Edting sneaked around the left end and Boots tossed to him for a touchdown. The try for point went wide.

Play Called Back
The Dutchmen had another chance to score after Al Boots recovered a fumble and raced 65 yards over the goal line, but the ball was called back.

Fondy started a march up the field in the last period with the ball on the Chuters 40 but Purp Wynboom intercepted a pass, to stop the threat. The Dutchmen punted, with Boots kicking out of bounds on Fondy's 15.

Injuries were numerous on both sides with P. Van Lankfelt, Marty Wyngaard, P. Van Boots and Jerome Helf all with injuries. Al Boots was laid low but played the full game. With some of the Chuters working, two veterans of the knock 'em down, drag 'em out era, Greg Hartjes and Preet Van Handel, donned suits and showed the rookies how it is done.

The Dutchmen will trek to Sturgeon Bay Sunday to meet the Cherry Marines.

900 Persons Fete Oklahoma Coach

Tom Stidham Says de Correvont Was Good But Jacobs Is Better

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Norman, Okla.,—(AP)—Oklahoma—once stomping ground of such Indian greats as Bill Rogers, Jim Thorpe and a chap named Sequah—is making its bid for football fame with the "chieftain from Checotah" leading the way.

This hero is big Tom Stidham whose University of Oklahoma Sooners carved themselves a slice of gridiron glory by turning Northwestern every way but loose, to the surprise of Northwestern in particular and the nation in general.

Stidham, in whose veins flows the blood of the Creeks, could have anything right now, just for the asking.

Probably he'd rather have another good passer or one more game for this year's weak home schedule.

That 7-7 tie with Southern Methodist in the opener has been forgotten. An example of Stidham's popularity came yesterday when 900 persons wiggled into an Oklahoma City banquet hall built for 600 to hear him make a five minute speech.

He was asked what he thought of Bill de Correvont, Northwestern sophomore.

"He's the best back we've faced since I've been at Oklahoma," Stidham declared, but added he had a couple of sophomores of his own—Jack Jacobs and Orv Matthews—that he wouldn't trade for de Correvont.

Three Marquette Varsity Men Will Be Left at Home

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—Three varsity men will be left behind when Coach Paddy Driscoll and 31 Marquette University football players leave tonight for East Lansing, Mich., where the Hilltoppers meet Michigan State Saturday.

Driscoll said that Dave Braden, regular guard; Johnny Goodyear, flashy sophomore halfback; and Chuck Peifer, junior tackle, would not make the trip because of injuries.

Two sophomore linemen, tackle Dick Brye and guard Joe Kinsey, operated with the first stringers during a dummy scrimmage session yesterday.

Warren Hall, 200-pound Chicagoan, was being groomed for use at right halfback.

Indiana-Badger Tangle Interests Big Ten Leaguers

Loser Will Definitely be Out of Western Con- ference Race

MADISON—(AP)—The Big Ten football teams of Wisconsin and Indiana, which are stumping even their own coaches, get together Saturday in what may be termed a game to the "last analysis."

The Hoosiers, while lacking speed in the backfield, in two games have scored 15 more points than they did during the entire 1938 season. Their points, too, are coming by razzle dazzle passing, an item not altogether characteristic of Coach Bo McMillin's teams.

But as Bo points out, "they just gotta throw the ball around if they are going to get any place."

For all of 36 points, however, Indiana has yet to taste victory. The Hoosiers tied Nebraska, and lost to Iowa in their conference opener, 32 to 29.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher "just can't understand" his Wisconsin Badgers who will be opening their Big Ten schedule Saturday. They won a close one with Marquette, then "fell over their own feet" last week in losing to Texas.

"If I hadn't seen it I wouldn't have believed it," said Stuhldreher referring to the Texas game.

That the Hoosier passing is working, the Badgers were evident yesterday's workout in which Stuhldreher placed considerable stress on pass defense. Wisconsin will be at virtually full strength Saturday with fullback George Paskevian and senior center John Doyle ready again.

Cats to Use Sophs
Northwestern appears ready to rely on three sophomore backs against the Ohio State Buckeyes. Bill de Correvont was at left half, Don Clawson at fullback and two other sops, Don Kruger and Ike Kepford, alternated at right half. Ohio State, meantime, worked for more speed at every position.

Minnesota warmed up for its conference opener with Purdue by holding a scrimmage in which the varsity rolled over five touchdowns. Purdue devoted most of its workout to building a defense for the Gopher power plays and brushing up its aerial attack.

Iowa, apparently undaunted by the heavy loss of manpower through injuries in the last week, drove through a spirited practice for Michigan. Max Hawkins and Herman Snider, a pair of 180 pounders, were in the guard position of the injured regular Charles Tollefson and Henry Luebeck. Michigan's line showed strength against Iowa plays used by freshmen.

Illinois drilled in Tucson, Ariz., for its game with Southern California. Two six-foot end prospects—Dick Lounsberry and Ralph Richardson—drew attention at Chicago as the Maroons had a thorough workout for Harvard.

Notre Dame looked weak against Southern Methodist passes and Coach Elmer Layden shook up his lineup.

Kimberly Eleven Works on Passes
The same was true of the forward passing workout. He emphasized the need for the passers getting the ball away fast but not so fast that they weren't set and sure of themselves when they let go. His ends and backs also were chased into the receiving positions with more speed and certainty.

Last night's drills indicated that the Vikes will use passes Saturday as a very definite part of their offense. The kind of tosses is something that Carleton and the fans will have to find out Saturday afternoon, but suffice to say that a change in one of the ends should make the Lawrence offense considerably more potent.

While Heselton was trying to coax some speed out of the backs, the linemen were with Ade Dillon perfecting their blocks and doing things with a little more finesse

A HIGH KICKER—A FAST STEPPER
Here are two more Lawrence college gridgers who'll see action Saturday when the Vikes meet Carleton in the feature of the annual Lawrence homecoming. The upper picture shows Fred Oliver, Appleton, who performs in the backfield and does some of the punting. Ollie was an outstanding performer with the Appleton high team and is holding his own as a first year player on the Lawrence varsity. At the right is Bob Everett, Oak Park, Ill., a halfback, who runs and passes with the best. One of these days Everett is going to have a field day juggling the pigskin and Coach Bernie Heselton hopes it is Saturday. (Post-Crescent Photos.)

Heselton Demands More Speed as Vikings Work Hard for Carleton Game
BY GORDON MCINTYRE
IF THERE has been any one thing about the Lawrence college football team in its drills this week, it has been a desire for more speed.

Recognizing that his backs have been getting underway too slowly, that his linemen have been coming out of positions like a cow getting out of the mud, Coach Bernie Heselton has been pounding into his charges the idea that you've got to move if you're going anywhere and that you've got to move if you are going to catch anyone.

Last night Heselton drilled his backs on the speed idea for a long time. Seldom did he find a back-field combination that got underway fast enough to suit him and if the ball carriers and blockers are not moving with rapidity come Saturday and the homecoming game with Carleton, it won't be Heselton's fault.

Works on Passers
The same was true of the forward passing workout. He emphasized the need for the passers getting the ball away fast but not so fast that they weren't set and sure of themselves when they let go. His ends and backs also were chased into the receiving positions with more speed and certainty.

Last night's drills indicated that the Vikes will use passes Saturday as a very definite part of their offense. The kind of tosses is something that Carleton and the fans will have to find out Saturday afternoon, but suffice to say that a change in one of the ends should make the Lawrence offense considerably more potent.

While Heselton was trying to coax some speed out of the backs, the linemen were with Ade Dillon perfecting their blocks and doing things with a little more finesse than has been the practice. John Messenger was getting in a lot of work and unless the doctors say that his slashed arm isn't ready, he probably will start at the weak-side tackle.

Dick Garvey, co-captain and center, was missing from practice again and reports were that while he was feeling better he still was in bed with a cold. Garvey was the only Vike to play anywhere near par against Coe last Saturday. He picked up his cold on the trip back north.

Lawrence is definitely "up" again after last Saturday. The Vikes have reported early for drills and have worked hard. With homecoming in the offing their enthusiasm is high and they're aiming at putting up a game Saturday like never before.

Recalls Another Game
They appreciate that Carleton will be tough and that the old homecoming jinx has held its own for several years. But they aren't going to be talked out of a win before the game starts.

Perhaps the Vikes would do well to remember another homecoming game here with Carleton. Lawrence was rated a terrific underdog at that contest—during Percy Clapp's regime—because Carleton had a guy named Tar Senior. He was as good if not better than Raiter of the present Carleton squad.

For three quarters and much of the fourth Lawrence staged a great exhibition of homecoming football. Senior seldom had a chance to get started, he was climbed on every time he carried the ball and the whole Viking squad played perfectly.

Novakofski Rejects Contract With Cards

Kenosha—(AP)—A contract offer from the Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League has been rejected by Obbie Novakofski, halfback for the Kenosha Coopers of the American pro league, it was announced today. Novakofski has been watched by scouts in both the Coopers' games this season.

Novakofski was co-captain of the Lawrence college football team last year. He had a tryout with the Green Bay Packers of the National league this fall.

ROBERT LESSELYONG of the Mellow Brews paced his team to a 2-game win over Atlas Printers in the Industrial Bowling league at Arcade alleys last night, smashing games of 248, 206, and a 640 series. Wally Grenz cracked 200 and 600 and O. Strutz 205 for the Brews.

The Brews hit high single and 3-game series, 1,056 and 2,971, but Atlas came from behind to win the final game as four of the five Atlas bowlers struck out. For the losers, Lloyd Schroeder, rolled 217 and 593, Meyer 231, 201, Vandervelden 229, and Klein 203.

Pond Spot dropped one game to Coated Paper and is now tied with Fredrick's Barbers for first place. For the Pond team, Bob Kunzitz smashed 231 and 586. Charley Pond 221. Andy Jinos paced the Coated crew with 213 and 546.

Freddie Vels pounded 212 and 594, J. Resnebeau 206, M. Buck 233, and O. Gorenne 201 as Fredrick's Barbers won all three from the Woolen Mills, led by Lee Barlament who had 549.

The Chair Co. clambered out of the league's cellar, where it has been all season, by clipping Atlas Embossers two games. Mike King leading the winners with a 527 series. Lyle Vander Velden rapped 209 and 582 for Atlas.

Schlafers' sent over its first team and the squad did right well by disposing of Wally Horn and his Post Office crew two out of three games. Clarence Below hit 518 for the Schlafers outfit. Horn had 205 and Wally Grimmer 569 for the losers.

Montgomery-Ward lost successive games No. 11, 12 and 13 last night by dropping all three to the Power Co., paced by Clem Antonetti with 205 and 571. R. Williams with 206, and Mike Sakellaris with 202. For the losers, Art Boehler wrote down a 509 series.

Wire Works stuck to its third-place tie by taking all three from Tuttle Press. F. Buss had 200 and William Lesselyong 549 for the winners. For the losers, Don Purdy rattled a 503.

Roy McCallum shot a 542 series to pace Al's Bar to a 2-game win over the Power Co. "Washers," now at the bottom of the league. Jim Zimmermann had 223 and 471 for the losers.

Northwestern Frosh Freed of Duty to Upperclass Peers
Evanston, Ill.,—(AP)—Ticket manager Ted Payser of Northwestern University freed the freshmen from the onerous duty of seat warming at football games in Dwyer Stadium.

For years fraternity and sorority upper classmen sent frosh to the stadium as much as two hours before game time with orders to plant themselves in choice seats in the student section until their elders arrived, leisurely, just before the kickoff. Then the frosh would have to get out and watch the game from whatever vantage points were left, if any.

Payser ruled that from now on no one, after once taking a seat in the student section, can get up and leave it.

Variety of Grapplers Show In First Wrestling Bouts At Neenah-Menasha Armory

BY RANDY HAASE

ENASHA—Professional wrestling opened its season Wednesday night at S. A. Cook armory with an entirely new cast although the script had some familiar moments. Variety in grapplers was the keynote and the bouts included a Navajo Indian, an Englishman, a Hawaiian, and a native of Calcutta, Ind., who appeared wearing a turban and long robe. His head was shaven and he wore a full black beard, pointed waxed mustaches and he wrestled in his bare feet. He added to the oriental atmosphere by sitting cross-legged in his corner before the bout opened.

Ali Pasha, the native of India, took the only fall in the windup contest with Frank Clemons, Navajo Indian. All three bouts were clean Wednesday night and provided good entertainment. Although the grapplers were in the light heavyweight division they moved around rapidly.

Pasha and Clemons went 39 minutes before the Navajo dropped exhausted from a series of punishing headlocks. Ali had an advantage in the early part of the bout with a hammerlock but lost it when Clemons turned on the heat with a toe-hold. Both grapplers got toe-holds and their legs were tangled and twisted like a bowl of spaghetti. Dutch Imhoff, referee, had to pry the two apart.

Pasha then took the fall with the headlock. In the final 11 minutes neither grappler managed to secure a decided advantage although Clemons did use a few forms of toe-holds.

Meeker Takes Two Falls
Jerry Meeker, Honolulu, took the final two falls from Winnett Wallington Watson of London, in the first bout after the Englishman had gained the first fall in 11 minutes. The bout ran true to form. After a series of exchanges, Meeker started to throw Watson around with flying mares and the Englishman appeared groggy. Just when a fall seemed imminent, he snapped out of it, used a series of flying droppicks off the ropes to flatten Meeker and used a body press for the fall.

Layden Working With Reserves for S.M.U. Saturday

Insists They Have Im- proved in Every Start This Fall

BY EARL HILLIGAN

SOUTH BEND, IND.—(AP)—Coach Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, gambling Irish chances for an unbeaten season on a group of inexperienced substitutes, will give the Notre Dame reserve "deck" another shuffle Saturday.

Poker-faced Elmer isn't kidding himself about what lies ahead. He knows his club will have its hands full Saturday afternoon against the Mustangs of Southern Methodist University. But while he wasn't worrying out loud about the remainder of a "suicide" schedule, he knows one thing alone will keep his Irish machine "in high"—development of a tested, capable second string eleven.

"Against Purdue the reserves looked weak," he said today. "They didn't go so bad against Georgia Tech. But we have to give them more work. We are a little leary of their ability, no question of that, and we don't want to take too much chance on losing games. But we are on a spot—unless we develop replacements we'll be in a tight situation the rest of the season."

Notre Dame just nosed out Purdue and Georgia Tech, winning both games on field goals. Some observers feel Layden's club is tottering on the edge of diving into the tied or defeated division. But Notre Dame gridiron history is crammed with surprises and Layden's coaching ability and Irish spirit—reserves or no reserves—will give S. M. U. a busy afternoon.

The only previous time the teams have met was in 1930—in Notre Dame's opening game of a season in which they went on to a second straight national title. Within the first five minutes each team had scored seven points. From then on it was a hectic battle with the Irish winning 20-14.

S. M. U. probably will stick to that old southwest custom of filling the air with leather inasmuch as Notre Dame allowed two opponents to complete 13 and 28 passes this season. But Layden insists that whether its passes or plunges he's going to try and pull several "aces" out of those second, third and fourth string packs.

Meeker Takes Two Falls
Jerry Meeker, Honolulu, took the final two falls from Winnett Wallington Watson of London, in the first bout after the Englishman had gained the first fall in 11 minutes. The bout ran true to form. After a series of exchanges, Meeker started to throw Watson around with flying mares and the Englishman appeared groggy. Just when a fall seemed imminent, he snapped out of it, used a series of flying droppicks off the ropes to flatten Meeker and used a body press for the fall.

Meeker got tough in the second fall, swung a few round-house punches, and then used a back breaker to take the fall in 16 minutes. Both got a bit tougher in the final round and apparently the Englishman was on his way toward a fall with another series of flying droppicks. But Meeker dropped early on one, Watson went flying through the air, landed, and pawed vaguely at the canvas and ropes. Meeker picked him up, used a back breaker and took the fall in three minutes.

Jack Conley and Pete Vukowich, provided action in their one-fall contest which was won by Conley, lad from the wrong side of the tracks in Boston, was billed as a toughie and Imhoff spent most of his time saying, "Don't hit him." Vukowich had an advantage in the going for much of the time with an arm-locked double toe-hold. Conley, however, rolled over, reversed the pressure of the hold, and forced the Milwaukee grappler to give up after 25 minutes.

Virgili Lost to Beloit For Saturday's Game

Beloit—With pass defense occupying the major portion of the daily practices of the Beloit College Blue Devils, Coach Bud Butler hopes to develop a net against the aerial attack expected when the Beloit eleven faces Cornell college at Mount Vernon, Iowa on Oct. 14.

His Blue Devil backfield weakened by the loss of field general Bruno Virgili, veteran quarterback who injured a cartilage in his leg during the Beloit-Carleton game last Saturday, Butler remains confident that constant drilling this week will make the team virtually pass proof. Jack Griffith, fleet sophomore halfback, is being groomed for Virgili's post.

Cornell, fresh from four non-conference victories, will have the advantage of playing on Parents' day, an occasion at which no Purple team has ever been beaten. Drills this week at Cornell will be light. The Purple passing attack will receive a good share of attention with Gene Torquist heaving to Wilson, Paul, and Stabler, all crack ends. Some stress is also being placed upon kicking, a department in which Beloit is notoriously strong.

Packers to Test New Players in St. Louis Game

Meet Gunners of American League Sunday On Missouri Grid

GREEN BAY—Finding an open date on the calendar, and determined to keep his men right up on their toes, Coach Curly Lambeau has arranged for the Green Bay Packers to take on the Gunners at St. Louis in a tough, non-league gridiron exhibition Sunday afternoon.

The St. Louis Gunners belong to the American Professional Football league, which is a youngster in the field where the National Pros are the kingpins. This does not indicate, however, that the Gunners are going to be a push-over for the Packers.

That the Gunners stage real fights was shown last Sunday when they shut out Kenosha, 14 to 0. The trip Sunday will be the Packers' first appearance in St. Louis since 1923, when the two teams pushed each other all over the field but never crossed the goal line.

New Men to Show
Main reason for staging the game, according to Coach Lambeau, is to give the new men a real taste of action. Games so far have been tight all the way, and the coach hesitates to give the recruits the tryouts they deserve.

Newcomers to the Pack camp who are slated for heavy work at St. Louis include Jimmy Lawrence, Larry Buhler, Frank Eals, Dick Welsch, Al Moore, Harry Jacobs, Charles Schultz, Warren Kilbourne and Jack Brennan. Ernie Smith, the veteran tackle who fractured a couple of fingers early in the season, also will be ready for a full day's work.

The Packers have been making mistakes all season, since they are no different in this respect than any other good team. These mistakes are being corrected, and the game at St. Louis will provide opportunity to test out the remedies.

Pass defense, especially, is coming in for considerable attention. Detroit invades City stadium in Green Bay a week from Sunday. "The Lions are anxious to win this game, and have scouted the Packers thoroughly. Obviously, everything the Green Bay team can do to get set for the Lions, is that much advantage."

NEW LONDON'S BEST KICKERS

These two New London kickers were doing a little limbering up drill the other evening when their pictures were snapped. They are, Charles Clark, No. 41, halfback, who does most of the placekicking and who is a good ball carrier, and Harold Pies, halfback, who does everything—punts, passes and runs. Chaff'n Chatter
By Gordon H. McIntyre
THERE HAS BEEN more than a little comment during the last couple of days about the University of Wisconsin football team, about Harry Stuhldreher and about the way Madison is taking last week's defeat. In answer to those comments, just go over the following paragraphs from Hank McCormick of the Madison State Journal following Monday's Uptown Coaches association meeting:

If you had seen Harry Stuhldreher in action Monday night at the weekly meeting of the Uptown Coaches association you would have sensed why he was such an inspirational influence in his playing days when as quarterback of Notre Dame's immortal 1924 team he directed the destinies of the famed "Four Horsemen."

The little guy with the bow legs, crackling voice, and infectious grin has a personal magnetism that sways you. The Uptown Coaches came to the meeting seeking the answer to dozens of questions—most of them good ones, too—and hoping against hope that they might come away with some consolation from the Wisconsin coach.

He stands where he always did—squarely back of the boys who wear the Cardinal.

"I told you in an earlier meeting of this group shortly after I took charge at Wisconsin that I wanted the boys to get the credit for a victory," he said.

"I said that in case of a defeat the blame was to fall upon we coaches. I still feel that same way. I am responsible for the way the boys play. When they play poorly, that's my fault."

"It isn't enough that I should give them plays, see that they are prepared to meet the other team's attack. It is up to the coaching staff to see that the boys are not panicky, not disheartened. That's part of our job."

They'll Blow the Roof Off
"And I will tell you this right now; they won't be 'tight' Saturday as they have been in two games. We will straighten them out, see that they lose their tenseness and play with casual abandon. I am confident the Wisconsin boys will return to form, whether that will make for a great team or not, and I believe that when they do hit their stride they'll blow the roof off for somebody."

Well, here was something! You could see the listeners lose their own tenseness, and there was a spontaneous burst of applause. There was a confidence in Stuhldreher's tone that carried conviction. Someone wanted to know why Wisconsin appeared weak against quick kicks.

"Our experience has been," said Stuhldreher, "that a team can't adequately defend against quick kicks and against forward passes in the center sector at the same time. We choose to take a chance on the quick kick with our getting possession of the ball rather than weaken ourselves against more dangerous passes."

Why didn't one of the players check the signal when the Wisconsin quarterback called for an end run with the ball on the Badger one yard line. (The play that resulted in the first safety.)
"Because our quarterbacks take sole responsibility," said Stuhldreher. "One man has to be in charge to prevent divided authority, and we place that trust in our quarterbacks."

Well, that's the way it went. At the end of the meeting, the Uptown Coaches left with their faces reflecting optimism.

Don Hutson Establishes Pass Receiving Record

NEW YORK—(AP)—Brilliant offensive play during the first month's campaigning promises an orgy of record breaking in the National Football league 1939 season.

Already one mark has been tied and one broken. Don Hutson, Green Bay end, has caught 11 passes to bring his total to 136, one greater than the old mark held by John Blood.

Ace Parker of Brooklyn completed 15 passes against Washington to tie the mark set by Pat Coffey of the Chicago Cardinals in 1937.

Other records definitely are in danger. Jack Manders of the Chicago Bears, scoring 16 points, boosted his lifetime mark to 320, only four less than Ken Strong's record total.

Ace Gutowsky of Brooklyn now is within seven yards of Cliff Bates' ground gaining record of 3,398 yards, and Jim Benton of Cleveland has scored five touchdowns in four games for a flying start in an attempt to better the record of nine for one season held by Hutson.

Averaging 7.7 yards in 41 attempts, Joe Maniaci of the Chicago Bears is setting a sizzling pace in ground gaining. Bill Osmandski of the same team, with a 5.6 average in 38 attempts, is in second place.

Parker Hall of Cleveland has tossed 75 passes, completing 41 of them for 544 yards and an efficiency average of .546 to lead in that department, with Ace Parker, batting .500 in 64 tosses, in second place.

Although Benton has scored five touchdowns on passes, from a catching standpoint he is only tied for third. Perry Schwartz of Brooklyn leads the parade with 15

LaCrosse Teachers Leave for Superior
La Crosse (AP)—The La Crosse State Teachers college football team, primed for a stiff tussle, left today for Superior and Friday night's game with the teachers college team of that city.

The teams are tied for the lead in the Northern division of the conference, each having won one game. Rising in the estimation of Coach Clyde Smith are Dick Lass and Frank Werling, yearling halfbacks who played fine ball against Eau Claire last week. They will alternate with Tom Kelly, stellar left half. Hartwig Ruesch will get the call at fullback.

catches and Vic Spadaccini of Cleveland is second with 13. Jack Manders of the Bears tops the field goal kickers with two out of three, the longest 38 yards. Bill Smith of the Chicago Cardinals leads in total points with 34, on four touchdowns, four conversions and two field goals. Benton is second with 30 points.

Wrigley Hasn't Made Up Mind on Manager of Cubs

Wants to Forget He Isn't A Fan; Disappointed With Team

CHICAGO—(AP)—When P. K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, makes up his mind on a 1940 manager, it is going to be an owner's decision, not a "fan's" decision.

"I would like to wait a few days—until I stop being a fan—to give consideration to that question," he said today.

Right now Wrigley considers himself a disgruntled fan, and as long as he remains one it's apparent Manager Gabby Hartnett is on the spot.

The Cubs boss was disappointed at the fourth place finish of his National league entry which "save for occasional spells, didn't look like a real team." He was more distressed at the Cubs' loss in the city series after holding a 3-1 game edge. On top of that he has indicated the club would finish in the red financially for the first time since the 1935 season.

So Wrigley merely said he was "undecided" when questioned regarding Hartnett. "I haven't talked to Hartnett at all recently, nor have we any immediate appointment," he remarked. "His contract runs into December."

One item favoring retention of Hartnett was the report that the kind of man Wrigley wanted for the job was not available at this time. Another was Wrigley's unwilling-term play leaders have adopted for sports in which both sexes participate together—was credited today, with "taking over Cupid's job."

Comely Miss Mabel Madden, of the Cincinnati recreation commission, explained in an interview at the national recreation congress how "boy meets girl" in her city "under wholesome circumstances."

"Scores of meetings in Cincinnati's self-supporting 'sports cafeterias' have been climaxed by weddings she said."

And, she added, those meetings don't produce the unhappy sequel of divorce. "Because," she said, "boys and girls who play together learn to understand each other. They learn whether they have common interests. A boy who sees his glamorous girl with her hair down and her make up washed off after a swimming party will find out just how good a sport she is."

A theory that "the dangerous people in the world are those who do not play" was advanced by Marguerite Kehr, of State Teachers college, Bloomsburg, Pa.

"The ability to play is necessary for a democratic form of society," Miss Kehr declared in a prepared address. "There is not much real recreation in the totalitarian countries."

Speaking of Pitcher Dizzy Dean, who came to the Cubs for $185,000, and three players, Wrigley said "he can stay with us," but inferred it would not be at the reported annual salary of $20,000 Diz has been drawing.

St. Mary's	4	8

FRANK LARSON cracked a 237 game and he and John Engel hit 609 series to set the pace in the Elks Western league at Elks alleys last night. Stanford, with a 933 game, and Oregon, with a 2,727 total, headed the team scoring.

Larson was a member of the Oregon team which took all three from Washington. His teammates, H. Gleisner and J. Bushey, rolled games of 215 and 202 respectively. Thompson hit 229 and 555 for the losers.

With Myles Reif smashing 202 and 543, Stanford took two from Utah, led by Engel who had 214, 201 and 609. A Demand shot 220 and 594 and J. Richmond 225 as Gonzaga took two from St. Mary's, paced by Greb who rolled two games of 216 and a 600 series and Kranhold with a 201.

Montana took all three from Santa Clara, Acker tossing a 479 series for the winners. Dan Steinberg, Sr., with 514, was tops for the losers. California won the first two games from Idaho and the two teams tied on the third with 879.

Elmer Honkamp hit 225 and 564 for California and Finkle 508 for the losing Idaho team.

Frisch Won't Talk About His Plans for Punchless Pirates

Pittsburgh — (P) — The punchless Pirates who wandered from second down to sixth place in the National league this year may be in for an overhauling—but their new boss won't admit it.

Frankie Frisch, the erstwhile Fordham flash who succeeds Harold "Pie" Traynor in the driver's seat, came to Pittsburgh yesterday for a three-day discussion with President Bill Benswanger. But all they accomplished the first day was signing the old "Flying Dutchman" Honus Wagner as coach for another year.

He'll keep an eye out for good deals, Frisch admitted, but beyond that statement he wouldn't budge. Rumors that Paul Waner might go to Larry MacPhail's net so that Dodgers were greeted with a broad smile and the comment "that's a new one to me." The same applied to whisperings that Brooklyn might like to acquire shortstop Arky Vaughan.

A GOOD BET

—by Phil Berube

Punch on the Nose Made a Gridder Out of Ripon Giant

RIPON — (P) — This is the story of a punch on the nose and how it awakened Milburn (Tiny) Croft to his potentialities as a football star.

Tiny, 230 pounds of good nature and social inclination, came up from Chicago last fall, enrolled at Ripon college and went out for the freshman team.

The coaches all but cheered. Here, they reasoned, was a man who could stop a truck.

But Tiny didn't. A genial soul, he disliked rough stuff, in fact, he preferred the social amenities of the sorority parlor to gridiron heroics.

Where many a lad his size would have challenged the opposing quarterback to send the next smash his way, Tiny derived his fun out of life by inviting Ann (Oomph) Sheridan of the movies to a college hop. (She couldn't make it.)

Nevertheless the coaches saw the heart of a football giant beneath Tiny's jovial exterior. But how to make him thrill to the thought of body contact?

One day, they enticed Croft down to the gym and after giving him the well known buildup matched him with a semi-pro boxer. "who just happened to be around."

Socko! The pro suddenly let Wagner reappointed.

Pittsburgh — (P) — The Pirates' new manager, Frankie Frisch, has reappointed Honus Wagner, as coach of the Pittsburgh ball club for the 1940 season. The 65-year-old "Flying Dutchman" now is in his 29th year in the National league.

Pirates, they're a cinch to get plenty of work. Frisch said he intended to hold two practice sessions daily at spring training camp and "keep the boys hustling."

America OUT-OF-DOORS

THE STRUGGLE GOES ON

By Buell Patterson

MY old friend and fishing companion, Ivar Hennings, takes me to task for writing about fishing for muskellunge with live suckers for bait recently. He approaches the reproach with an angle on conservation that has considerable merit aside from the difference in sporting thrill of the artificial bait used and the live bait.

Ivar contends that when a fish of the fighting qualities of a muskellunge is caught on live bait he is likely to be badly damaged before the bait can be extracted and the fish removed. This is because the fish swallows the live sucker completely and it goes deep into its stomach.

A muskie that would live to give another angler a battle is destroyed where he might not be if the lure had been an artificial one which had not been swallowed so deeply.

Artificial Lures Sporting

It is true that there is a deal more sport in landing and fooling a fish of size with an artificial lure such as a plug or a spoon, than there is from hooking a big one for keeps on a live bait. Many, however, are not skillful enough to handle an artificial lure successfully enough to fool a wise old fish, and it was for those that I suggested the ways and means of using a big live sucker for a muskie lure.

Possibly the use of barbless hooks in connection with live bait might be worked out so that there would be decidedly less damage done to the hooked fish. If a taut line is kept with barbless hooks there is little more possibility of a fish getting free than there is when the ordinary barbed hooks are used.

It is a crime to destroy fish which are not a legal size and if the use of any or all artificial lures will cut down the decimation from this cause by all means we should use the made style of lures. On the other hand the fishing fraternity has initiated many a user of artificial baits by getting him inter-

Grid Dodgers Release Six After 41-13 Loss

New York — (P) — Members of the Brooklyn Dodgers of National Pro Football league today were working like a ward heeler on election day following the dismissal of six players yesterday and rumors that others were "on the block."

Ed Merlin, guard from Vanderbilt; Gus Zarnas, guard from Ohio State; Stan Kessel, back from Alabama; George Lenc, former Augustana college ace; Bill Reissig, end from Kansas; and Jim Neill, a back recently obtained from the Chicago Cardinals, were those who felt the axe.

The action followed a 41-13 loss to Washington Sunday.

Detroit — (P) — Coach Elmer Henderson of the Detroit Lions of the National Football league announced today he had asked waivers on Hank Brull, young halfback.

Brull, who played for the University of Wichita in 1938, is being replaced by Kent Ryan, former Utah State star who was with the Lions last year.

THAT'S WHAT HE GETS

Creston, Neb. — (P) — Creston High school superintendent Elton Copey didn't like what he saw as he stood on the sidelines watching the school football team at practice. So he went on the field to show the line-men how to charge. Five minutes later the boys carried Copey off with a dislocated knee.

Harris Again Signed
Washington — (P) — President Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators, announced today he had signed Stanley (Bucky) Harris to manage the Senators in 1940. No mention of salary was made.

ested in the sport of angling by the live bait route.

The circle of a fisherman usually starts out with live bait, bait casting with plugs and other artificial lures, and then fly casting. While fly casting is no more exacting science than bait casting at its best, it has been and still is looked upon as the highest development of Waltonian art.

YORK - QUARTERBACK

(Editors Note: This is the thirteenth in a series of articles on University of Wisconsin football players.)

BY DAVE ROWE
Madison, Wis. — (P) — One of the out of state players on the University of Wisconsin football squad is Claude York, 6 foot 192 pound quarterback from Sioux Falls, S. D.

A junior in the Commerce school, York played halfback last year. He scored a touchdown against the University of California at Los Angeles and his blocking was a feature of the Indiana game.

Because of his blocking ability Coach Harry Stuhldreher has shifted him to quarter where he will act as first assistant to Fred Gage.

York played football, basketball and baseball in high school, captaining the grid squad in his senior year. The eleven and the basketball five won the Southeastern title each of the three years he played. The 20 year old youth won all-state honors on the gridiron as a senior. This summer York worked on an ice truck.

Combined Locks Man Is Hurt in Mill Accident

Combined Locks — Peter Opsiein is confined to his home for several days as a result of an injury received at the Combined Locks Paper company when his finger got caught in a paper machine roller.

Mr. and Mrs. Nether Weyenberg entertained at a duck supper at their home Tuesday evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Weyenberg and Mr. and Mrs. David Vande Hey. After supper cards were played and lunch was served.

Rosemary Weyenberg was absent from school for several days because of a slight illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Berghuis were surprised early Wednesday morning by Mr. and Mrs. John Berghuis of Little Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Math Sprangers of this village.

2 Packers, 3 Cardinals Fined by Pro President

Dayton, O. — (P) — Carl Storck, president of the National Football league, today announced he had fined five players of the Green Bay Packers and Chicago Cardinals teams for unsportsmanlike conduct and for conduct against the best interest of the sport in last Sunday's game at Milwaukee.

A fine of $25 each was assessed Clark Hinkle and Charles Schultz, of Green Bay, and Al Barbarsky, Ross Carter and Milton Popovich of the Cardinals.

Coaches Take Steps to Organize Association

La Crosse — (P) — Twenty coaches at high school in the La Crosse area took the first step last night in organization of a first-state high school coaches association.

Plans for such an organization were discussed and Ray Nibbe, head football coach at Logan high, La Crosse, was appointed chairman of a committee which will contact other coaches in this territory.

S. M. U. HAS BAND, TOO

Notre Dame, Ind. — (P) — The first team ever to play the Irish in Notre Dame stadium—Southern Methodist—will return here Saturday but the publicity drum beaters seem more concerned over the famed S. M. U. band, one "dope story" even pointing out that "bandmaster Frank Malone lost three men by graduation."

Plans Mapped for Red Cross Drive

Marion Organizations to Be Represented in Roll Call

Marion — Miss Frances Vogler, Red Cross representative, was here Wednesday morning, when she conferred with branch chairman Mrs. H. G. Meyer and civic organization representatives relative to the annual roll call. The meeting was called to order by the chairman and then turned over to Miss Vogler, who in turn explained why so an intensive program is to be carried out this year.

It was decided at the meeting to ask five members each of the American Legion, its auxiliary, Woman's Relief corps, Woman's club and Rotary club to cooperate in putting on the roll call.

The chairman appointed Mrs. Lloyd Fox as the chairman of the roll call, the legion and Rotary committees will canvass the business district, Mrs. Karl Miller will have charge of the special gifts, Woman's club, first ward; auxiliary, second ward and Woman's Relief corps, third ward. A delegation will attend the Red Cross convention to be held at Madison, Friday, Oct. 20.

The Schafskopf club met Monday evening at the H. F. Peters home. High scores were held by Henry Kussman, Will Borchardt and Will Fox. The club will meet next Monday evening with Jay Halpou.

At the meeting of the Girl Scouts last week, the following girls passed their tenderfoot tests: Carol Mae Arndt, Jean Wieman, Berny Daley, Betty Behling, June Moericke and Mary Jane Lacy.

The patrols selected their names: "The Flying Horse," with Carol Mae Arndt, leader, and Berny Daley assistant leader, "Trail Blazers," with Mary Jane Lacy patrol leader and Betty Behling, assistant.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Meyer and daughter, Mary June, were at Milwaukee Tuesday.

ROLLS PERFECT GAME

Milwaukee — (P) — Roman Korbus, 27, bowling in Milwaukee's Classic league, rolled a 300 game last night. To his perfect score he added 200 and 214 for a 714 total.

In spite of that, the S. M. U. football team is expected to show up.

STORY OF LANDING

By good fortune, the world has a record of the landing of Columbus, a record made by the admiral himself.

After going ashore in a small boat, he saw "trees very green, many streams of water, and different kinds of fruit." Columbus called out to his comrades to bear witness that he "took possession" of the island for the king and queen.

Columbus landing on island of San Salvador, as pictured by an early artist.

As to the natives of this new land, let us see what Columbus wrote about them:

"They were friendly to us . . . and I gave them some red caps and strings of glass beads, and other things of small value. They were delighted."

"Later (after the party had gone back to the sailing vessels) the natives came swimming to us, bringing us presents of parrots, balls of cotton thread, javelins and other things."

"In exchange we gave them glass beads and hawk's bells. They were willing to take anything, and they gave what they had with the greatest good will. But they seemed to be very poor people."

"All the men I saw were young, not over 30 years of age. They were well made, with fine faces. Their short, coarse hair was combed over their eyebrows, except for a few locks which they let hang down behind and never cut. Some paint themselves with black, others with white, others with red, and others with such colors as they can find."

"I showed them my swords and they grasped the blades and cut themselves, since they did not know better. Their javelins are nothing more than sticks, sometimes with fish-bones at the end."

"I saw that some men had scars on their bodies, and used signs to ask the cause of them. They replied with signs to tell me that men from other islands had come to try to capture them."

"I believe these people would make good servants. I also believe they could easily become Christians since they seem to have no religion of their own. I intend to take six of them home, so they may learn our language."

Columbus gave the name of San Salvador to the island he reached on October 12, 1492. He left it a few days later, and never found it again. Some scholars believe it was the same island we now know as Watling's island. At any rate it was one of the islands in the Bahama group of the West Indies. (For History section of your scrapbook.)

Riddles, games and puzzles will be found in the "Funmaker" leaflet. If you would like a copy send a 3c stamped, return envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. Theresa Bruex and son Robert left Sunday for Montello from where they left Monday for Kalamazoo, Mich., to spend 10 days with relatives.

Julius Fuge Succumbs After Long Illness

Hilbert—Julius Fuge, 67, of Stockbridge, died Wednesday morning at an Oshkosh hospital, following a lingering illness which developed into heart disease. Mr. Fuge was born July 9, 1872, at Maple Grove, Manitowish county. In 1888 the family moved to Stockbridge where he purchased the Watson Cook farm. Mr. Fuge was married Dec. 22, 1898, to Anna Minahan of Chilton. Survivors are the widow; one daughter, Mrs. Lyman Parsons of Stockbridge; two grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. George Heller and Mrs. Arthur Harsch of Stockbridge and Mrs. William Winkel of Colby; two brothers, Phillip Fuge of Merrill; Edwin Fuge of Omro.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home. Burial will be in the family lot in Lakeside cemetery.

Dalbly Funeral Services Conducted at Waupaca

Waupaca — The Rev. Edward Langdon read the funeral service for Mrs. Emma Dalby Wednesday afternoon at the Methodist church. Bearers were Henry Larson, Lester Feragen, Earl Fabricius, Miles Loberg, Vigo Jensen, and S. W. Johnson. Burial was at Lakeside cemetery.

Emma Larson was the daughter of Lars and Lena Larson; she was born in Waupaca Jan. 22, 1887. Survivors are five sisters: Mrs. John Peterson and Mrs. Ralph Fabricius of Waupaca; Mrs. Harry Gordon and Mrs. Donald Barnes, Milwaukee, and Mrs. Arthur Feragen, South Bend, Ind., three brothers,

Missionary Society in Meeting at Seymour

Seymour—The Woman's Missionary Society of the Evangelical church held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. R. L. Sherman Tuesday evening with 17 members and 3 visitors present. Mrs. H. A. Bernhardt was the leader of the meeting, and the subject of the study was "Follow Thou Me on the Bush Paths in Africa." Prayers for the missionaries and their families in Africa were offered by several members. A playlet revealing the methods of travel and the work of the missionaries was given by Mrs. Bernhardt, Mrs. Paul Kuehne, Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. John Reim. Current events were contributed by the members.

A short business meeting followed the program. The next meeting will be held Nov. 13, at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Bernhardt. The Rev. William Glaeser of Washington, former pastor of the Seymour and Cicero Evangelical churches, visited in Seymour the first of the week.

South Africa may send a rowing crew to the 1940 Olympic Games in Finland.

125 Church Women Attend Conference at Waupaca

Waupaca—The seventh annual October meeting of the Waupaca County Federation of Protestant Church Women was the most large-attended since it was founded in 1932 under the leadership of Miss Lettie B. Ritchie, Royalton. About 125 women were present, representing 15 churches of 5 denominations: Methodist, Episcopal, Baptist, Congregational, and Presbyterian. The convention began with a devotion at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the First Baptist church. The federation welcome was given by Mrs. D. E. Burnham, Waupaca, the response by Mrs. G. S. Barrington, Crystal Lake. Two vocal solos were presented by Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Waupaca. The convention organizer was Mrs. G. N. Doody, Waupaca. Fifteen churches gave a report of their year's work.

The afternoon session opened with devotions in charge of Mrs. Arthur Ritchie, Royalton. It was decided to change the name and to invite any church into the federation. The new name is "The Waupaca County Federation of Church Women."

Readings were given by Mrs. Frances Dean and Mrs. R. Fletcher of Royalton. The Baptist church of Waupaca presented the play, "The Church Door Keys" which illustrated the manner in which sacrifices of love keep church doors open. Mrs. G. N. Doody impersonated Mrs. Day; Mrs. Sherm Salversen took the part of Mrs. Chord, Mrs. Leon Jacklin of Mrs. Anderson; Mrs. Walter Olson, Mrs. Early, and Mrs. Charles Nelson the part of Mrs. Black.

Mrs. K. R. Lindsay gave a report of the Methodist Unity Conference, and Mrs. G. N. Doody related her experiences in attending the World Baptist Conference in Atlanta, Ga., the last week in July. Mrs. John Saffern, Manawa, sang "The Holy City." The meeting closed with the singing of "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds."

OVERHEARD AT TREASURE ISLAND:

"I never realized how important the coffee-tester is!"

"Behind the Cup," a sound picture in Cinecolor is showing to full houses at Hills Bros. Exposition Theatre, Golden Gate International Exposition.

"I NEVER REALIZED HOW IMPORTANT THE COFFEE-TESTER IS," remark people who visit Hills Bros. Exposition Theatre. And he is important! Not until he passes on the quality of each individual lot of coffee is it put into the Hills Bros. blend. Likewise, every succeeding step in the production of Hills Bros. Coffee is carefully checked to insure uniform quality... to cause you to say, "Now that's what I call good coffee!"

"The Correct Grind IS EXACTLY RIGHT"

"I've used several types of coffee-makers and always get delicious coffee when I follow the directions. As far as regrounding the Correct Grind—never! When you do that you lose flavor, freshness, and aroma."

IMPORTANT: Carefully observe timing for each method. Measure 2 level tablespoons of coffee to each cup of water. Vary water slightly for exact strength desired. Keep coffee-maker clean.

Drip Method: 6 to 8 minutes preferred. If less than 2-3 cups of water is made, water will drip too fast giving weak brew.

GLASS VACUUM MAKERS: Put up-bowl on after water boils. Coffee and water should be in contact 5 to 7 minutes.

PERCOLATORS: Start with cold or hot water. "Perco" 7 to 10 minutes after steady pumping starts.

COPPERPOT: Bring coffee and water to boiling. Stir well. Add small amount of cold water and let stand 5 minutes to settle grounds.

STEeping: Pour boiling water on coffee. Stir well. Sit again in 5 minutes. Steep for a total of 10 to 15 minutes.

"I'm bigger than you—that's why I take more PREMIUM CRACKERS"

You'll always ask for Premiums if you make this simple test

NOTICE THE COLOR—Isn't the rich golden tint of a Premium Cracker appetizing? Only a perfectly baked cracker could besotempting.

SEE THE TEXTURE—Break a Premium in half and observe how "open" and light it is inside. Extra shortening makes Premiums so much flakier—tastier!

TASTE IT—Mm—it has a real wholesome, home-made goodness. Premiums are made with fine ingredients, in clean, sanitary bakeries —topped with a special kind of salt. No wonder Premiums have so much more flavor than ordinary crackers. Stock up with Premiums for the week-end. Serve them with every meal, and with in-between snacks. Your dealer has Premiums—fresh!

SUGGESTION OF THE WEEK Give the youngsters an "after school" treat of their favorite spread and Premium Crackers. Jam, jelly, peanut butter, nut-butter, cream cheese—children like them twice as well on crunchy Premium Crackers!

Special Classes For Farm Youths

Part-Time School to be Held This Fall, Winter in Weyauwega

Weyauwega — Arthur R. Kurtz, local agriculture instructor will conduct a part-time school for farm boys between the ages of 14 and 25 who are not in school at the present time and who would like to continue their education.

Classes will begin at 2:15 next Tuesday afternoon in the local school.

Meetings will be held once a week during fall and winter months and the subject matter to be covered will deal largely with livestock diseases. A recreational program also will be arranged.

An adult evening school also will be conducted by Mr. Kurtz. Organization meeting will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Alder Creek school. All adult farmers from that community and from Bohren and Sandy Ridge districts are being invited to attend.

Members of the Aid Association for Lutherans were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Richter Monday evening. Winners at cards were Mrs. Ed Sherbert, Mrs. Martin Fischer, Walter Koehler and Otto Thevs.

The couple club met with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Koehler at their home Tuesday evening. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Martin Huebner, Mrs. Ervin Mader, Martin Huebner and Julius Henriot.

Mrs. N. E. Leary, son Robin and daughter Betty Jane of Evanston, Ill., were guests from Saturday until Tuesday at the home of the former's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Sherburne. The two families were dinner guests Sunday at the home of their niece, Mrs. Len Jinske at Stevens Point.

Mrs. and Mr. Louis Lange are spending an indefinite time at the home of the latter's brother, George Carpenter, Weyauwega. The Langes have sold their residence in Oshkosh.

The J.F.F. club met with Mrs. Harry Rocher Monday evening. Winners at auction were Mrs. Loren Gemberling, Mrs. William Radtke and Mrs. Harry Farky.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gehrkke are spending a week's vacation in northern Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Legion Auxiliary Has Its Fall Conference At Veterans' Home Hall

Wauwesa — Mrs. Paul Ovrom, president, and Mrs. Paul J. Williams were Wauwesa delegates to the eighth district fall conference of the American Legion auxiliary at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home for presidents and secretaries. Meetings were held Wednesday in the Amusement hall, this being a kind of house-warming since this was the first time the hall had been used after it was remodeled.

The fall conference was given by Mrs. Esther Hemingway of Mattoon, the invocation by Mrs. O. Hilgendorf, district historian. Dr. E. F. Hafe-meister addressed the group giving a three year report on the increase in attendance at the Wisconsin Veterans' Home, there being now 527 registered at the home, 45 per cent being World War veterans or their wives or mothers. Brief greetings were given by Mrs. George Schuler, president of the William R. Shipley unit of the Veterans Home, and Tom, Shaughnessy, post commander, and Mrs. Luedke, Wauwesa county president.

A tribute was paid to the late Mrs. Sadie Noll in the song "Goin' Home," sung by Mrs. Axtel Spindt. Minutes of the 1938 conference were read by Mrs. C. J. Berg, district secretary. Mrs. Hemingway, district vice president, gave a report on the national convention. Miss Cora Brown, department secretary, enumerated the various pamphlets published by and available to the auxiliary.

Mrs. William Rudersdorf, state rehabilitation chairman of Wisconsin Veterans' Home, told of progress made in the new hobby shop at the home. She reminded members that besides donation of handicraft materials, veterans could make use of pajamas, bathrobes, towels and wash cloths, neckties, playing cards, and jig saw puzzles. There was a display of knitting, bead work, baskets, rugs, tables, stools, whatnots, and Thanksgiving favors made in the hobby shop.

At 12:30 the Rural Ladies Aid society served a chicken dinner. The afternoon meeting opened with community singing. Arlin Pitt, Fremont, eighth district commander, declared that it was his objective as commander to get better accommodations for veterans. Mrs. J. Holliday, New London, sang "This Is My Task," and "When Your Hair has Turned to Silver." Following Mrs. Minnie Sproesser's talk on how to obtain new members, the conference closed with the singing of "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Legion and Auxiliary Have Joint Gathering

Hilbert — The Hilbert American Legion post and auxiliary unit held a joint meeting Monday evening at the village hall. Plans were formulated and committees were appointed to prepare for entertaining the county posts and units at Hilbert on Armistice day.

The post and unit were presented with a complete history of William L. Brockman, who died in action in France during the World War and for whom the post and unit were named.

Max Gohre prepared the history and presented it. The business meeting was followed by cards and refreshments.

The women's bowling league will open the season's activities Friday night. The league consists of four teams bowling on four alleys once each week. The team names will be chosen Friday night, the teams organized and captains selected.

Mother Should Seek Doctor's Counsel to Keep Baby Well

Madison — "The best way for a mother to learn how to keep her baby well is to keep in close touch with the baby's doctor," the state medical society said in a health bulletin today.

"Mothers know that knowledge is the principle ingredient of the formulae for bringing up a baby healthfully, but the source of knowledge must be true and accurate. Many mothers read books written especially for them by men and women who not only know the facts but also know how to present them. They learn from these books that babies should be kept away from people, especially people with colds, that they should have plenty of sunshine, cod-liver oil and orange juice, that their water should be sterilized, and that admirers should not handle babies too much.

"A mother cannot know or recognize many of the early signs of trouble because she is not trained to do this and because she is too near the baby and sees him too often to realize that any change is taking place. She cannot know just when her particular baby needs to have his food changed or increased, nor when is the best time for her baby to be protected from diphtheria and vaccinated against smallpox. Such things as these the doctor will know, and his advice is of the greatest importance to every mother who would keep her baby well.

Good Habits Necessary

"Health, character, and happiness are the results of good habits. A baby is born without habits, and therefore his success and happiness in later life are determined by the habits his parents permit him to form. The first three months of life are perhaps the most important of all. Regularity is the first and most valuable habit to form in the young baby. He should have his food, his naps, and his bedtime at the same time each day, by the clock. If the baby wakes between feedings and begins to cry, the mother should turn him over, give him water to drink, and put him back to bed. She should not hold him or rock him to stop his crying, nor let him have his feeding until the exact hour for feeding comes. It will not hurt the baby, even the tiny baby, to cry.

Protective measures for the child's health should be instituted early in life; for example, vaccination for smallpox and immunization for diphtheria should be administered preferably during the first year of life.

"As the child grows older, his diet must be watched carefully so that it includes milk, one or more cooked vegetables, fruit or vegetable, egg, fish, meat, and some source of vitamin D, such as cod-liver oil."

Weyauwega Lions are Guests of Clintonville

Group at Long Lake
Clintonville — Members of the Weyauwega Lions club were entertained by the Clintonville Lions Tuesday evening at their clubhouse on Long Lake. Following the dinner entertainment was provided by Miss Irene Prentice of Weyauwega, who gave several impersonations and a reading. She was introduced by Arlie Koten, principal of Weyauwega High school, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Officers of the Clintonville Fish and Game club and their wives met for a covered-dish supper Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Kerstner of E. Second street. The directors held a business session, after which schafkopf was played. Prizes were won by George Stevens, Mrs. George Graff, Mr. and Mrs. George Spiegel.

About twenty were present. The November meeting will be held at the Stevens home.
Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Mack entertained members of the Thrift club and their husbands Tuesday evening. Four tables of five hundred were in play, after which a lunch was served. Those receiving prizes were: Walter Wolf, Nick Schmidt, Henry Hedtke, Mrs. Paul Kluth and Mrs. Henry Zuhse.
A report of the grand chapter sessions held last week at Milwaukee was given by Mrs. F. C. Walch at a regular meeting of the Order of Eastern Star Tuesday evening. Mrs. Norman Hanson and Roy Marjand added a few remarks about the grand chapter. Others who attended from the local chapter were: Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Harley Powell, Mrs. G. A. Seidel and Mrs. Fred Holmes.
The S. O. E. club and guests will meet at the temple Friday afternoon.

Distribute Fire Prevention Forms

School Children Participate in Drive to Eliminate Hazards

New London—The purpose of fire prevention week was brought home to New London citizens this week through 1,400 home fire inspection blanks distributed among all New London school children Wednesday by Fire Chief Dan Rex. The forms, printed by the fire department, consist of a questionnaire on fire hazards in and around the home which requires a complete and detailed inspection of the home to be answered properly. Parents were requested to help the younger children fill out the blanks.

Business men and merchants are being impressed with the significance of fire prevention by being asked to subscribe to a card carrying fire prevention regulations which will be posted in all buildings where occupants have subscribed.

A personal fire inspection of all New London public and parochial schools was made today by Fire Chief Rex.

In the first fire drill of the year, a new record for clearing the building was set at Washington High school Wednesday. Students completely evacuated the building in 1 minute, 18 seconds for a new speed record.
